QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY GRADUATION

WEATHER BANNED AIR TRIP

ASSEMBLY HALL CEREMONY

FORCED BACK BY THE WEATHER WHILE FLYING FROM LONDON YESTERDAY, THE MARQUIS OF LONDONDERRY WAS UNABLE TO BE PRESENT AT THE SUMMER GRADUATION CEREMONY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY, BELFAST, OF WHICH HE IS CHANCELLOR.

The Vice-Chancellor (Mr. F. W. Ogilvie, M.A.), who conferred the degrees in Lord Londonderry's absence, expressed regret that he had been prevented from being present. "Our Chancellor is a knight of the air," he said. "Those of us who know him will know that the weather must have been bad indeed to keep him from us."

SCHOOLMASTER'S HONOUR.

Among those who received honorary degrees was Mr. Thomas Galway Houston, M.A., O.B.E., doyen of secondary schoolmasters in Ireland. Presenting him for the degree of Doctor of Laws, Professor Montrose recalled that as a boy Mr. Houston was present when Queen Victoria visited Queen's College, Belfast, in 1849. Mr. Houston is in his 95th year.

The ceremony took place in the Assembly Hall. Included in the Academic procession were the Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justice, Colonel Thos. Sinclair, M.P. (Pro-Chancellors), and the Lord Mayor (Sir Crawford M'Cullagh, Bart.).

In his address the Vice-Chancellor said the year 1938 is being devoted by the University to an endeavour to extend their resources of teaching and equipment, and the Chancellor had asked him to express most warmly the lively gratitude of the University to the Government of Northern Ireland, the Belfast Corporation, the 300 and more graduates and others for the generous action which they had taken or which they proposed.

On behalf of the Chancellor he gave a warm welcome to the graduates assembled, saying how proud the University was to be able to place upon its roll their names, from first to last, and to wish them, on whom the name and fame of the University so largely depended, all good things in their new life.

An organ recital was given by Capt. C. J. Brennan, B.Mus., F.R.C.O., honorary organist to the University.

HONORARY DEGREES.

Degrees (honoris causa) were conferred as follows:—

LL.D.—Thomas Galway Houston, M.A., doyen of secondary schoolmasters in Ireland. Headmaster of Coleraine Academical Institution from 1870 to 1915.

ROYAL ULSTER SOCIETY.

SHOW AND SALE DATES ALTERED.

Mr. John Wallace, Anticur, Dunloy, occupied the chair at a meeting of the Cattle Committee of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society held in the Grand Central Hotel, Belfast, when the committee placed on record their sincere regret at the passing of Senator J. Hill Dickson, a member of the committee for 40 years. They also expressed their deep sympathy with his family.

The dates of the spring show and sale to be held in 1939, which, at the last council meeting, was arranged to take ace on February 21, 22, and 23, were tered to February 28 and March 1 d 2.

The question of holding a supple- ntal sale of pedigree and crossbred e at the end of March, 1939, was dis- d, and further consideration was red until October next.

letter was read from Messrs. Mac- d, Fraser, & Coy., Perth, kindly ng a silver challenge cup for com- n at the spring show and sale, and s agreed to suggest that this cup be ded as a perpetual challenge cup he best group of three shorthorn bred in Ireland and owned by an r.

s intimated that Major H. C. n, M.P., intended either to or re-present the "Chichester- Memorial Cup and the "Robson" l Cup, won out by him at this nnual show.

ult of the international cattle contest at the Royal Show at was received with great satisfac- d the secretary was directed to the committee's heartiest congratulations to the Young Farmers' Clubs of Ulster team on its success.

The committee also dealt with correspondence relating to the payment of prize money and other matters.

MOTHER UNFIT TO PLEAD.

CHARGE OF MURDERING CHILDREN.

When Ellen Wilkinson (35) appeared before Mr. Justice Charles at Staffordshire Assizes charged with the murder of her two children, John Cecil, aged 5, and Frank, four months, at Kingswinford on April 29, the jury returned a formal verdict that she was unfit to plead.

The Judge ordered that she be detained during the King's pleasure.

Dr. John Humphrey, medical officer at Birmingham Prison, said that he had formed the opinion that Wilkinson had not sufficient understanding to comprehend the nature of the charge against her.

SERVICE FLYING BOATS.

BIGGEST ORDER EVER GIVEN.

I learn that the Air Ministry recently placed the biggest order ever given in any country for military flying-boats states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" air correspondent. The type is the Short Sunderland, a heavily-armed four-engined craft, embodying much equipment, the nature o fwhich is secret.

No details are available of the number ordered, but apart from engines, accessories, and equipment, the amount involved reaches millions sterling.

Associated with this order is one for a large number of the type of wings used in the flying-boat. These are to be used in the construction of a new bomber type.

FAVOURITES FAIL AT LINGFIELD.

A SURPRISE VICTORY.

Favourites failed with monotonous regularity at Lingfield yesterday afternoon, the reason being that the course had been well watered before the recent heavy rain (writes "Hotspur," the "Daily Telegraph" Racing correspondent). The going in consequence was softer than it has been for many a long day, with disastrous results to the majority of backers.

Perhaps the worst result of all was the clear-cut victory of Conversation Piece over her two opponents, Tahir and Helzephron, in the Lingfield Park Plate of £1,000. All the big betting concerned the other two, Helzephron starting a slightly better favourite than Tahir, whose price was 13 to 8.

There was little to choose between the three of them approaching the distance, but almost immediately afterwards Helzephron and Tahir came under the whip without any effect. A. Burns meantime was riding confidently on Conversation Piece. When the daughter of Orpen was given her head she strode away quite impressively to win with something to spare.

"WISE AFTER THE EVENT."

It is easy to be wise after the event, but actually Conversation Piece had the beating of Tahir on their running in the Warwickshire Breeders' Foal Plate at Birmingham just over a year ago. On that occasion she gave the Aga Khan's colt 7lb. and was beaten by two lengths. Yesterday she was receiving 10lb.—Smirke on Tahir putting up 1lb. overweight.

Curiously enough, Conversation Piece did not appear in the Free Handicap for last year's juveniles, in which Tahir was given 9st. 4lb., being rated the fourth best of his age.

It is to be feared that he has deteriorated sadly since running third to Pasch at Kempton Park in April. The hard ground has probably been all against him.

The fact that only three turned out for this event—the same number incidentally as last year—is further proof, if any were required, that races which close three years before running are, generally speaking, a waste of time. There were originally 153 entries.

NUMBER BOARD MISTAKE.

When the numbers were placed in the frame in the paddock number-board for the Jack's Bridge Plate it was seen that Leading Topic actually had the No. 1 berth, a distinct drawback in a field of 19 over this five furlongs.

As it happens, a number of people backed a 10 to 1 winner that they otherwise would not have backed, having relied on the paddock board for their information.

Leading Topic won by a neck from Cheer Boys Cheer, with Sacred Fish beating the favourite, Inenia filly, who wandered all over the place, for third place. Incidentally, I learn that Fearless Fox, whom Jarvis trains for Mr. Gordon Smith, may not race again.

It will be recalled that Fearless Fox broke down during the race for the Ascot Gold Cup. He has been an exceptionally unlucky horse, and, although there is a chance that he may be trained for the Cesarewitch if he can be got sound again, I understand that it is more likely that the son of Foxlaw will be retired to the stud.

LIKING FOR COURSE.

Another favourite was bowled over when Mendicant Friar failed dismally in the Summer Handicap. Fedor set off in front of Snake Lightning and Samarkand, but Snake Lightning took the lead going up the hill, and was never afterwards headed, scoring easily by four lengths from Harvest Home, who beat Samarkand for second place by a length.

Snake Lightning showed a liking for the course when winning in October, but his only previous success this season was over two miles at Kempton Park in May. Harvest Home was staying on at the finish of this mile and a half without being able to produce any finishing speed, and it may be that he wants a longer distance to be seen at his best.

In the circumstances it is interesting to note that the four successive victories he gained in Ireland last season were all over a mile.

Harvest Home is by Trigo, who won the Derby and St. Leger for Mr. W. Barnett in 1929, and should resume winning form before long.

FELT SLIPPER UNLUCKY.

The winning post on the straight mile is some 50 yards beyond that used for races over other distances, and it looked to me as if J. Crouch, who rode the favourite, Felt Slipper, in the Oak Tree Maiden Plate, mistook the post. Anyway, he dropped his hands momentarily as he passed the first one.

Evidently realising his mistake, Crouch sat down and rode hard again almost immediately, but it was too late, and his mount was beaten a short head by Night Sister, who was a well-backed second favourite.

Golden Grain was a moderate third, and Drumstick ran as if a mile were all too short for him.

Crystal Palace, carrying a 5lb. penalty for his success at Ayr last Saturday, which was nullified because Lacey claimed the apprentice allowance, gained another easy victory in the Waterside Selling Plate. Lady Cosmo made the running for half a mile, but then decided that she had done enough, and dropped right back, behaviour unbecoming to a sound favourite.

"FAIRLY FLYING."

Shortly afterwards Crystal Palace took the lead, and was not extended to resist the challenge of Cultured Pearl by a couple of lengths. The winner, who started at 100 to 8, is trained for Mr. J. Ramsden by Tom Walls, and was bought in for 120 guineas.

Saucy Link must be regarded as a very unlucky loser of the Bantors Selling Plate, as after being rather slowly away, and in an apparently hopeless position at halfway, he was fairly flying at the finish, and only failed to overhaul Hannah Lightfoot by a head. Pride of the Desert filly, who also lost ground at the start, was only a head behind Saucy Link.

The winner, undoubtedly, won the race at the gate, as she got a flier despite being drawn No. 1, which is usually considered a disadvantage on this straight course. Ayesha IV. filly had every chance, but faded out in the last 100 yards, and just missed a place. Hannah Lightfoot, who was the first winner saddled by R. Swash the new Binfield Grove trainer, was bought in for 300 guineas.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

By "THE MAN WITH THE HOE"

THE recent gales and heavy rains have affected many tall plants in the garden. Broad beans, which are not usually staked, have been laid low in many places. Many flowers have also suffered, showing the necessity of early staking and secure tying.

Brooms and tall Buddleias have been blown over, and Tree Abutilons and Hollyhocks uprooted and Standard Roses bent to the ground. Stakes break the wind even if not tied to the plants, so each tall growing plant should be staked at the time of planting. Bamboos are admirable for this purpose. They should be driven firmly into the ground with a wooden mallet.

Markets in towns and villages are interesting places to visit, as there are generally booths where flower roots and vegetables are sold at reasonable prices. One can brighten up a greenhouse with such plants as Salvias, Pelargoniums, Heliotropes and Geraniums if desired, and a purchase of strawberries (which are now ripe) may be made.

Ready for Planting.

There are generally plants for salads such as Lettuce, Scallions, Radish, Mustard and Cress to be had, and table plants such as Asparagus Fern and the well-known Aspidistras. At one market the bright golden-flowered Tagetes, or Mexican Marigold, ready for planting out, was purchased, and anyone who wants Antirrhinums can get them ready for planting without the trouble of raising them from seed.

Blue-flowered Lobelia and French Marigolds were noted at this time. As the months go round the flowers differ, and during the autumn fruit bushes, shrubs and plants for hedges, and Roses are sold. A visit to one of these markets is quite an interesting and enjoyable outing to one who finds the constant working in a garden growing monotonous.

Another place which gardeners would find interesting and instructive to visit is one of the large gardens which are open to the public to visit on certain days at a small sum, which is given to nursing charities.

At these gardens some new and interesting plants are often seen which have been collected from time to time by the owners when travelling in other lands, or have been seen by them in Kew Gardens, where everything is kept up-to-date.

In some of these gardens are marvellous collections of shrubs, rock plants and trees, and every visit adds to one's knowledge of plant life. There the lovers of plant life will also see water lillies and other aquatic plants in bloom, and gold fishes darting to and fro in the calm waters—a fairyland seen for the time being.

Seaside Gardens.

Seaside gardens, although blown about, look bright and beautiful when the sun shines out. Amongst the flowers noticed was the pink-flowered Oxalis, which is very bright with its numerous flowers when the weather is fair, and closes up at the approach of rain.

Sea Pinks and Garden Thrifts are now in bloom, and Gaillardias and Gazanias were noted. The Red Lychnis were also attractive. It belongs to the Campion family and is rather distinctive. Campanulas and Mimulus were also seen. The latter has richly coloured flowers. As it is a half hardy perennial it requires to be protected in winter or to be put into a cold frame or greenhouse.

That is the reason, perhaps, why it often disappears out of a garden where it previously flourished. Besides the flowers already referred to some choice pinks and some early out-of-door Chrysanthemums and a few Dahlias were also observed.

Lupins, Delphiniums and other plants of the herbaceous border are now showing their seed pods and fading flowers, and if seed is not required the spikes should be cut off, as they weaken the plant, and sometimes an autumn bloom later is prevented. Full blown Roses should be removed also, and the seed pods on Sweet Peas cut off so as to encourage a fresh crop of flowers later.

Gay Greenhouses.

Cold greenhouses look bright at present with geraniums in full gay bloom, and Salvias, and the attractive foliage plants, Coleus. Roses here are at present resting after their spring display. Later on they will come into bloom again with another crop of flowers. Heliotropes are now in bloom and scent the greenhouse with their fragrance.

In sand dunes visited Scarlet Anagalis, Blue Speedwell, Yellow Sedum, Wild Thyme, Heartsease and Lady's Bedstraw were seen in bright clumps of colour. Some of them were taken home for trial in a rock garden. They were planted entirely in sea sand.

"AUCTION IN KILLYBUCK."

AT THE PLAYHOUSE NEXT WEEK.

Next week's attraction at the Playhouse, "The Auction In Killybuck," is both an evening's entertainment and a tonic. It is a great favourite with Ulster folk, and is a play that will bear seeing many times, each time making a fresh appeal to playgoers with its rollicking humour. The production is in the hands of Mr. Harald Norway, who has spared neither himself nor his company in his efforts to be correct in every detail, and it is expected that it will draw packed houses. Intending patrons would be well advised to book early, as directly this attraction was announced there was a rush for seats. The prices are 2s 4d, 1s 3d, 1s, and 6d.

BURNED BY MOLTON METAL.

CONDITION OF FIVE MEN.

The five men who were seriously burned by molten metal when a blast pipe burst at the Workington (Cumberland) Iron and Steel Company's works late last night are still detained in Workington Infirmary to-day.

Four of them passed a peaceful night, but the condition of the fifth, William Small, remains serious.

The explosion blew a huge hole in the side of a furnace, and the five men were showered with molten metal.

The men were—William Moore, James Glover, Robt. Warbrick, James Graham, and William Small, all of Workington. They were employed by a London firm of contractors making alterations to nearby plant.

DR. FARAUT ARRESTED AT NICE.

PARIS, Friday.—Dr. Faraut, an alleged member of an association closely affiliated with the Cagoulards, or hooded men, organisation, has been arrested at Nice on a charge of illegally importing arms from Italy.—"Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

FOR TRIAL AT TYRONE ASSIZES.

John James Stewart (32), a farmer, residing at Drumcairne, Stewartstown, at a special court in Stewartstown yesterday, before Mr. C. Logan, J.P., was charged with offences against two young girls.

He was returned for trial at Tyrone Assizes and admitted to bail.

THE U.S. AMBASSADOR

AND DECLINE OF MORALITY.

PARIS, Friday.—Mr. William Bullitt, the U.S. Ambassador in Paris, was given the freedom of the city at Rheims today.

In a speech marking the occasion he commented that Rheims was celebrating the reconstruction of her cathedral at a time when other towns in other countries were busy destroying theirs.

Twenty years ago, he said, the murder of defenceless men, women and children would have sent a shiver of horror throughout the world. Since 1918, however, the decline in international morality had been so rapid that to-day countries were not ashamed to use such crimes as an instrument of their policy.—Central News.

REGENT'S CANAL DOCK FIRE

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION?

Fire broke out on Friday evening in the main hold of the s.s. Aar (ex-Adler), a German ship registered at Bremen and moored in the Regent's Canal Dock, just off the highway, Stepney, London.

The crew were busy loading sacks of copra and had put aboard about 40 tons when eight of the men working in the hold found themselves surrounded by fire.

They escaped uninjured, and then set to work with hoses trying to extinguish the flames.

The London Fire Brigade rushed ten fire engines, with 50 firemen, to the dock and pumped water from the canal, while a river fire float was ordered to stand by.

The firemen pumped water so rapidly that the ship took a heavy list to the quayside and gave the appearance of almost heaving over. Within an hour the firemen had gained control of the fire, but expect to be busy for some hours before the fire is finally extinguished.

Rain is blamed for the fire, having, it is believed, started spontaneous combustion.

SATURDAY COMMENTARY BY LADY OXFORD AND ASQUITH

The PASSING PAGEANT

LORD and Lady Howard de Walden's ball was the most gay and successful entertainment that I have been to this season. They are a remarkable couple, and she is the only "Margot" that I know intimately.

As far back as the Boer War, I remember reading a poem by my host, which had been given to me. I did not know him at the time. So when my husband said: "I would like to have a copy of that poem, as it is brilliant," I was not able to procure it.

I asked him at the ball, at the top of the staircase, if he could find it. To which he replied that he had completely forgotten that he had ever written it. I wish that I had kept all the topical poems which appeared in print when I was young, but I was busy writing my diaries.

KEPT MY SPEECH SHORT.

THE Duke of Kent and his lovely Duchess joined the dancers later in the evening, and I had an interesting conversation with the Duke.

I would have stayed later, but I thought I better return and think of what I would say at the Foyle luncheon, which was given in honour of a book which I edited, called "Myself When Young." But, after carefully considering what I should say, I came to the conclusion that chairmen should be brief, as public lunches are always, all ways, too long.

The best speech at our luncheon was delivered by that wonderful woman, Maud Royden. It had the rare quality of both amusing and touching her hearers.

I sat close to my friend Ellen Wilkinson, and I would like to have ended the luncheon by thanking Miss Foyle, my publishers, and my contributors, but I was assailed by autograph-hunters, and, after signing my name, too often with hot hands, I went home.

I have never run hares, nor hunted heroines, but, though I have received many letters signed by famous men, I have only asked for their autographs twice in my life.

Once was when I was very young, and Robert Louis Stevenson came to see me; the other was the late Lord Salisbury, for whose writing and speaking I had the greatest admiration.

I sat next to him at a dinner given by Waldorf Astor's father, and I told him that I had bought a photograph of him—at a shop where photographs of every man of fame were displayed—and that, if he would come and see me in our house in Cavendish Square, he might sign it for me.

To my delight he came, and I reproduced his signed photograph in the first book I ever wrote: "My Autobiography."

THE KINDEST CHAIRMAN.

MY daughter Elizabeth (Princess Antoine Bibesco) and I went to the Royal box at Wimbledon on the 29th. We were too late to see Austin, but we saw Miss Marble, who threatens to become a rival to Mrs. Moody.

I was lunching at Claridge's with Professor Nicholas Murray Butler, and his clever wife. He was my chairman when I was in the United States, giving what were called "Mrs. Asquith's Lectures."

"Lectures" are a pretentious and misleading name for my "causeries" on American platforms; but my audiences received me with unmerited applause. Of all my many chairmen Professor Murray Butler was the kindest and the most encouraging.

MY U.S. FAILURE.

I REALISED after my first appearance in New York that I had been a complete failure, and scanned the papers next day to see what they would say of me. They gave a description of my dress, etc., and one wrote: "Her manner is better than her matter, and she has a golden voice."

I reminded my host at Claridge's of these by-gone days, and he urged me to stay with him, since in many parts of his country the British were very popular. And, speaking for himself, he said: "The only hope of future peace lies in our close collaboration."

We spoke of the new American Ambassador, and I told him how popular Mr. Kennedy and his pretty wife had already made themselves, and how much I had enjoyed lunching with them.

MISS JACOBS' DEFEAT.

ON Saturday last I saw the final lawn tennis matches at Wimbledon, and watched some magnificent play. That Mrs. Moody won the All-American singles surprised no one.

What did, however, surprise me was the plucky fight that her rival put up, and when the two Helens were four all they were cheered by an enthusiastic crowd in the Centre Court.

After this it was noticed that Helen Jacobs was limping, and she sat down in obvious pain, at which Mrs. Wightman, her captain, came to the side of the court and had a few moments' conversation with her.

While this was going on Mrs. Moody stood stolidly on her service-line; nor did she appear to show a sign of sympathy, though one might have supposed normal convention should have prompted her to have gone to the net to inquire after her rival.

LOVING OUR NEIGHBOURS.

SHE should realise that generous gestures in games make every competitor popular in a country as devoted to sport as we are. I was told afterwards that both Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Moody come from the same town in California, which may account for this curious manifestation on the part of the lady champion.

The Duke of Kent joined the dancers with the Duchess.

R.L.S. . . . "When I was very young he came to see me."

I do not suppose that we should ever have been told to love our neighbours, in the Bible, had it been an easy matter.

We have taught the world how to love, to lose, and to play games; I therefore wonder why we are so often beaten. Without in any way under-rating the prowess of our recent marvellous golf victory, I think, if we are not allowed to play golf or tennis at our public schools, we cannot hope to compete with boys who have the start of us.

I may be quite wrong, but to play games well, you must practise them when you are young.

TEMPERAMENTAL SUZANNE.

THIS was one of the lessons the late Suzanne Lenglen was always preaching. Though she was nearly forty when she died, I am told she would have dearly loved to enter the list against Mrs. Wills Moody.

It would have been an interesting encounter, but age would have been against the French champion.

Moreover, she was one of the most temperamental women I have ever seen on the Centre Court, and it is to me an intriguing speculation what would have happened if anyone, when she was at her zenith, had been good enough to press her really hard.

BABY FOR BARONESS

SHE DEFIED MARRIAGE BAN.

TIMBER MILLIONAIRE'S DAUGHTER.

The birth of a daughter to Baron and Baroness Anton Dirsztay in London yesterday is announced.

Baroness Dirsztay was Miss Patricia Benn, 22-year-old daughter of Mr. F. H. Benn, the South African timber millionaire, and she defied a parental ban in marrying the Baron at a London register office last August.

Her father threatened to disinherit his daughter if she married the Baron.

A large crowd gathered outside the register office on the day announced for the marriage, but at the last moment the bride telephoned to say it was all off.

The next day, after a conference at the flat of Mr. Vic Oliver, the comedian, and husband of Mr. Winston Churchill's daughter Sarah, Miss Benn went to the register office and the couple were married.

A few days ago, when the imminent birth of the child was known, the Baron expressed a hope that it would lead to a reconciliation between his wife and her parents.

INDIA'S FEUDAL WAR.

NO HOPE OF SETTLEMENT.

The hope that a settlement of the dispute in Sikar, Jaipur State, negotiated outside the affected area, would have a calming effect in the city itself, seems unlikely to be realised, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Bombay correspondent. The mad Rao Rajah of Sikar, whose followers have revolted against his feudal overlord, the Rajah of Jaipur, has arrived at Ajmere.

Mr. Bajaj, a personal friend of Mr. Gandhi, leaves Wardha, Central Provinces, to-day in response to an urgent request that he should mediate.

Sikar, however, is still in a state practically amounting to siege. The situation in the city is tense, though there has been no further violence.

"VICTIMS OF FASCISTS."

INVITED TO SPECIAL SERVICE.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia, as well as the Ambassadors of China and Spain, have been invited to attend a special service at St. Clements' Church, Barnsbury, on Sunday, July 17.

The vicar of St. Clements, the Rev. E. O. Iredell, told the Central News on Friday night that the service was a solemn commemoration of the victims of Fascist aggression.

It was being held on July 17 because that day was the second anniversary of the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War. The preacher would be the Dean of Canterbury.

"The Council of Action are supporting us," he added, "and they have invited about 1,000 clergy throughout the country to hold similar services on that day."

"STARVING MILLIONS."

GOVERNMENT ACTION DEMANDED.

Britain's unemployed with their dependants must number approximately five million souls, said Mr. J. Marchbank, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, at the annual conference at Southport yesterday.

They were Britain's "starving millions," he said, and the position could only be remedied by a radical change in the social system. The unemployed stretched in single file would reach from London to Inverness (over 550 miles). With their dependants, they represented the total populations of Glasgow, Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds, and Sheffield.

The conference passed a resolution declaring that the continuance of nearly two million unemployed was a disgrace to twentieth century civilisation, condemning the Government for its failure to adopt remedial plans, and demanding that immediate plans be made to check the slump which would follow the armaments activity by a comprehensive programme of public works, adoption of the principle of the 40-hour working week, and adequate pensions on retirement at sixty.

WOMAN OFFERS EYE FOR SALE.

SHE WANTS £1,200 FOR IT.

"I KNOW WHAT I AM DOING."

WINDSOR (Ontario), Saturday.—Because she is tired of depending on charity for existence Glasgow born Mrs. Annie Middleton, the mother of five children, is offering to sell the cornea of one of her eyes to any person willing to pay her £1,200.

Mrs. Middleton, who is 40, said in an interview that she had decided on this course to obtain money after reading of successful operations to restore sight by transferring the cornea of one person's eye to another.

"Some people will probably think I am crazy, but I know what I am doing," she said.

"I cannot see any point in raising a family of under-nourished children—four-months old Alice is three and a half pounds underweight. We just keep slipping back more every day.

"My husband is a baker by trade, but he lost his business."

The family has been dependent on charity for the last three years. The Middletons live in a barren room formerly a dance hall above a garage.—Reuter.

TURKISH ARMY MANŒUVRES

WAR ON REBEL TRIBES.

The Turkish Army is shortly to take part in large-scale manœuvres in the Dersin region of Kurdistan, the mountainous wilderness in Eastern Anatolia, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Angora correspondent.

About 50,000 men, with air squadrons and mountain artillery, will be engaged. The concentration of troops has already begun. According to a statement by the Premier, M. Bayar, in the National Assembly on the internal situation, the Turkish Government has decided to root out mercilessly continuous insubordination, and also to stop incursions by rebel Kurdish tribes from the eastern borders, which have frequently resulted in fierce clashes.

During the manœuvres the army will assist in the repression of any such contingents with which it may come in contact, and will put an end to any mediæval customs still prevailing. These will be supplanted by a drastic imposition of all Kemalist reforms.

S.O.S. FOR "IRON LUNG."

BUT IT ARRIVED TOO LATE.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS VICTIM.

The B.B.C. broadcast the following S.O.S. in the news bulletin on Friday night:—

"Dr. Langley, medical superintendent of the East Suffolk (Ipswich) Hospital, urgently requires a bragg-paul respirator.

"The respirator, which is one of the types which are popularly known as "iron lungs," is needed for a child who is very seriously ill with infantile paralysis."

The London Hospital got into communication after the broadcast S.O.S. and within a short time an "iron lung" was on its way to Ipswich Hospital.

The boy, Reginald Gill, aged nine, for whom the broadcast was made died early this morning just before the respirator arrived.

He was the son of a porter at the East Suffolk Hospital.

Stricken suddenly with infantile paralysis, he was in too critical a condition to be moved. During Friday night Ipswich ambulances toured the town securing volunteers to work in relays to apply artificial respiration.

The squad of life-savers was headed by the resident medical officer at the hospital, Dr. G. E. Langley, and Dr. Ronald Jones.

The boy, who was the youngest of three children, died within sight of the hospital.

LAUNDRY GIRL'S DEATH.

CYCLE—MOTOR-CAR COLLISION.

A verdict of manslaughter against Reginald Rigler, of Cole's Avenue, Hanworthy, Poole, a painter, was returned at the Salisbury inquest on Friday on Violet May Maggs, 19-year-old laundry hand, of Trinity Street, Salisbury, who received fatal injuries on June 26 at Downton, near Salisbury.

She was riding with her fiance and two companions when a collision occurred between her cycle and a motor-car going in the opposite direction driven by Rigler. She died two days later.

Companions of the dead girl alleged that Rigler's car overtook other cars, and they had to get into single file to avoid it.

Rigler, who was allowed bail in his own recognisance of £100, at first declined to give evidence, but, after some discussion with his solicitor and counsel, elected to do so. He said the cyclist swerved across the road, and he could not avoid her.

RIOTOUS CONDUCT IN YORK STREET.

USE OF PARTY EXPRESSIONS.

For riotous behaviour in York Street last night, Edward Rodgers (18), Daisyfield Street, was find 20s and bound over for a year, at the Belfast Custody Court to-day.

Head-Constable Armstrong gave evidence that defendant was a member of a riotous element which was accompanying a procession along York Street towards the Midland Railway. He was shouting and using party expressions in the vicinity of Lancaster Street, and persisted in this when spoken to by the police. He refused his name and address.

WIDOW'S 11 MURDERS

PRISONER'S GAY CLOTHES

AT LIEGE TRIAL.

Sentence of death for 11 murders and five attempted murders was passed yesterday at Liege Assizes on Marie Alexandine Becker (59), a widow, who was found guilty after a trial lasting a month. The victims died from the effects of digitalin poisoning.

The jury had to answer 38 questions. They gave 35 affirmative answers.

When sentence was pronounced the prisoner hid her face in her hands and wept bitterly. Death sentences are not carried out in Belgium, and Mme. Becker will be sent to penal servitude for life.

Mme. Becker's victims were all women with one exception, and were mainly elderly widows. Her practice was to enter into conversation with likely-looking women in public parks and sympathise with them in their ailments.

NURSED VICTIMS.

Having won their confidence, she would persuade them to let her nurse them. The 11 victims died under her care between March, 1933, and October, 1936, having previously made wills in her favour.

Mme. Becker maintained remarkable composure throughout the trial. She appeared in gay clothes, sometimes wearing red and blue, and on one occasion a bright pink silk dress.

The prisoner contested a large number of statements made by the prosecution. On one occasion the President of the Court said:—

"Everybody in the case except you is lying then?"

"Yes," Mme. Becker answered.

BODY FOUND AFTER FIVE MONTHS.

The body of Mr. Ernest Albert Hase, 56, a company director, of Park Road, Woking, Surrey, was washed ashore at the foot of Beachy Head yesterday.

He disappeared from an Eastbourne hotel on February 1, and although apparently his body had been in the sea for five months it was still fully-clothed.

MINER'S DEATH MYSTERY.

ORGANS TO BE EXAMINED.

Remarking that "death might be due to natural causes or to something else" the coroner adjourned an inquest at Heolycyw, a Welsh mining village, near Bridgend, on Edward Glymor Watts (37), a collier, of Bryncethin (Glamorgan).

The coroner stated that the cause of death was a mystery, and certain organs had been forwarded to a pathologist for a report.

Mrs. Frances Edwin Watts, the widow, said her husband complained on Tuesday morning of a "tingling pain" all over his head and body. He did not take anything that day apart from a cup of tea in the morning. He was in terrible pain, and she found him walking about the bedroom. He did not sleep on Tuesday night, but was walking about the bedroom all night. She asked him if she should send for a doctor, and he said "No." He died shortly after four o'clock.

Replying to the coroner, she said he was a hearty eater at times, but had not taken any tinned food prior to his illness.

Dr. J. J. Fitzgerald said a post-mortem examination showed that Watts' stomach was very acutely dilated. Death was due to dilation of the stomach of which he could not say the cause.

LINEN TRADE REVIEW

Making Ulster G.H.Q. of Empire Flax Industry

Prolonged Holidays—Contrast With 1937—Commodity Markets Moving Up—Bedford Street More Hopeful—Flax Market Activity—How Sino-Japanese War Has Affected Linen Trade—Unemployment Figures—Flax Committee And Its Aims—Its Early Activity—Stage Set For Permanent Revival—Westminster Has Flax In Mind—Empire Possibilities—What Hitler Has Done.

(From a Special Correspondent.)

Every spindle and loom in the Ulster linen industry will be silent for at least another week. One or two mills closed down on the first of the month and will re-open on July 18. The other spinners and manufacturers, however, are on holiday as from Friday evening, and have timed their vacations in accordance with the state of their order books. A few of the busier firms are taking only a week's holiday, but many will not resume for a fortnight or three weeks.

It has been an extremely bad half-year for every section of the industry, in vivid contrast to the almost boom-like conditions of the early months of 1937. It is strange to recall that this time last year weavers were denouncing the audacity of some spinners in closing their mills for a whole week, though far behind in yarn deliveries. Two days' holiday was ample, these critics declared.

However, it is idle to repine as happy days may soon return. Improvement is general in all commodity markets in Europe and America. There was more optimism in Bedford Street this week than for some time past. Further bulk buying of yarns showed increased confidence on the part of manufacturers. Fair cloth buying is expected after the holidays. The stock markets, at home and abroad, are looking up and cotton continues to show a rising tendency. Rumours continue to forecast the early conclusion of the Anglo-U.S.A. Reciprocal Trade Pact, but until confirmed we must expect business from the States to be confined to a filling-up basis.

Ulster Spinners' Purchases.

The flax markets have been more active, and Ulster spinners have been operating largely at Courtrai, where selection has improved and prices and values are more attractive than elsewhere. It is probable that this week's Ghent boat carried around 2,000 bales for Belfast. French spinners, of late, have withdrawn to some extent from the Flemish markets, but Belgian mills have been covering heavily. Buying has been brisk in the Rotterdam flax market, and some unexpected Blue Dutch was quickly absorbed at a handsome advance. Yellow Dutch also sold well at firm rates. Flax pulling is now in full swing in Holland.

Soviet and Latvian flax values show an advancing tendency, and the Latvian Monopoly claims to have sold 1,500 tons of Livonian, probably to Germany. Speculators, impressed by the great firmness shown by the Soviet Monopoly, refuse to yield price concessions. It is unlikely that flax values will weaken until new crop is available, if then. Nominal raw material values show slight increases, with Fourth Group Slanetz R at £85-86; Ralo tow, No. 8 at £66-67; Latvian Livonian R at £69-70; Werro Petschory Halves R, £68-69; and Lithuanian R at £58-59—all per ton, c.i.f. United Kingdom. This week four tons of Irish flax arrived belatedly at Strabane market and realised from 8s to 9s per stone. Nominal values in Ulster of machine-hackled water-retted tows, medium quality are—Courtrai, £63-75 per ton; Irish, £56-65, and Baltic £52-58.

Advices just to hand from Wilne indicate that the area of the new Polish flax crop is the same as that of last year. The current quotation for Wolosin cleaned flax is £35 10s-£36 (gold).

Italian hemp, first cousin of flax, is held at unchanged prices. Recently some business was negotiated in SB at £72-73 per ton, c.i.f., but such figures are restricting business. Values—Naples S-EE-E thirds, light, £76; discoloured, £64; Bologna S.B., £72-73; PC, £70-71—all c.i.f. U.K.

Nominal Irish linen yarn prices—Sheer warps, 90's to 110's, 7s 4½d per bundle; cambric warps, 75's to 85's, 7s 4½d per bundle; 110's, 8s per bundle; tow wefts, 25's, 9s 9d per bundle; 40's, 7s 6d per bundle; line wefts, 40's, 8s 9d per bundle; 70's, 7s per bundle; 80's, 6s 9½d per bundle.

Year of Conflict.

Thursday marked the anniversary of the first shot fired in the Sino-Japanese clash. It was a shot which has had big repercussions in the Ulster linen world, as China had become the world's fourth largest buyer of Irish linen, which she used in the production of high-class embroidery for the U.S.A. markets. The China trade kept a host of Ulster spindles busy on fine yarns and "lashions" of looms at work on cambrics and sheers, particularly in the Portadown and Lurgan districts. The effect of the Japanese invasion of China was not felt fully by Ulster linen exporters until September of last year, when United Kingdom shipments to China dropped to £5,714 as against £41,340 in the previous month. Worse still were the September figures which registered a further decline to the nominal sum of £55. Then they started reviving to £23,228 in November, to £43,154 in December, to £41,239 in January. February marked a decline to £30,334, and March a further shrinkage to £25,719. April shipments rose to £26,836, but May returns revealed a further recession to £11,111. It is difficult to assess definitely the damage caused to date to Ulster trade by Japan's Imperialistic ambition, but it is a very big sum. United Kingdom linen shipments to China in the nine months ended May 31, 1938, totalled £207,390 as against £424,605 in the previous nine months.

Future linen prospects in the China market are far from roseate. In 1936 the U.S.A. imported Chinese embroidered linens to the value of 2,282,103 dollars, and her purchases totalled 1,172,777 dollars in the first half of 1937. Over 100 linen firms were then in operation in China. The Chinese linen embroiderers are extraordinarily deft, and a microscope is required to appreciate fully the finest examples of their workmanship. In 1936 around 2,380,000 embroidered linen handkerchiefs alone were exported to the U.S.A. from China. The rest of the world, Puerto Rico not included, sent the United States only [illegible]14,000 dozen.

Gloomy Reading.

The linen trade unemployment figures, issued this week by the Northern Ireland Ministry of Labour, make gloomy reading, as they are an infallible barometer of conditions and output in the industry. They reveal that on June 13 the percentage of Ulster linen workers unemployed was 38.4 as against 36.5 in the previous month and 18.5 in the corresponding period of last year. The latest total comprises 5,718 men and 13,991 women wholly unemployed, 1,233 and [illegible] women temporarily stopped, and [illegible] male casual workers unemployed. These are the figures for the past 18 months, which speak for themselves:—

[illegible]	10,253	9,816	431	16.7
[illegible]	10,622	10,135	475	17.3
[illegible]	11,380	10,497	855	18.5
[illegible]	11,434	10,588	855	18.6
[illegible]	13,835	12,054	1,771	21.9
[illegible]	15,320	14,728	1,582	25.9
[illegible]	20,455	16,691	3,764	32.3
Mar. 14	20,492	16,576	3,536	32.4
Apr. 4	21,387	17,993	3,394	33.8
May 16	23,099	19,025	4,074	36.5

1924	9.8	1929	14.03	1934	17.4

Naturally the 1938 figures apply only to the first six months of this year, and it is to be hoped that the percentage for the whole of 1938 will make an appreciably better showing.

Date to Remember.

To future generations of Ulster flax growers the first of July may be almost as memorable as the "Twelfth" is to the Orange Order, for on that day the Flax Committee met for the first time. "Bouquets to the Committee," as the Americans say, for they are certainly not letting the flax grow under their feet. Their first meeting took place only a couple of days after the announcement of its full membership. Already they have held further sessions, and they have inspected the modern methods practised by the leading County Down scutch mill which I mentioned in my last article. Next week the committee plans to send a deputation to the Courtrai district of Belgium to inspect the latest methods in vogue there, and which will be described in my next report. It has been truly said that the Flemish are to flax production what the French are to cookery. They are incomparable flax producers, and it is certain that we can learn a good deal from our Belgian friends.

Prior to the initial meeting on July 1, the Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour and the Right Hon. J. M. Andrews entertained the committee at luncheon. Mr. Barbour, who presided, pointed out that of all branches of the great textile industry of the United Kingdom, the linen trade alone was capable of being supplied with home-grown raw material, and yet not only has the acreage diminished to a mere fraction of what it at one time was, but those engaged in its cultivation had not reaped the profit from its growth on a scale to which they considered they were entitled. The Minister of Commerce recalled that in addition to the large amount of employment offered in the manufacture of linen, its value in our export trade and assistance in commanding foreign credit was of considerable importance, but in the supply of materials required in national defence flax occupies a prominent position. So, for some years past representations had been made continually to the Government from farmers, spinners and those interested in the provision of employment that some action should be taken to put the various sections of the industry into better condition.

Proof of Right Spirit.

It was stated at the luncheon that the spinning section of the trade has undertaken to find the entire amount of the new flax development fund which the Government requires to be subscribed by the interested parties (£1 for every £9 subscribed by the Government). This gesture is an earnest of the genuine desire of all in the Ulster linen industry to take the Ulster farmer into partnership. It is significant of the progressive spirit of the Irish linen industry, which, with its business about as bad as business could get and still be called business, digs deep into its pocket to encourage new enterprises.

Linen trade capital and enterprise is now seeking a method of decorticating green straw which may supersede retting in the case of certain grades of fibre. The day is in sight when the Ulster farmer will be absolved from retting (and possibly pulling), which he abhors, and when he will simply sell his straw to central flax factories which will decorticate and market it. One can hardly over-estimate the possibilities of the introduction and development of a system whereby the flax can be bought on foot from the farmer and subsequently handled by modern mechanised methods in combined retting and scutching factories. Unquestionably the stage is set for a permanent revival in Irish flax production, leading to Ulster linen, which is purely Ulster from the sowing of the seed to the sewing of the last stitch in the finished article.

If all the permissible expenditure be made it should be so expended as to leave the cultivation of flax upon a permanently self-supporting basis. While the members of the committee were drawn from various sections of the trade, the Government hoped the broad view as to what might be best for the trade as a whole might be the guiding consideration, and not any desire to secure special advantage for any one particular interest.

Ulster Expert for Kenya.

Senior members of the linen industry were interested to read in the "Belfast Telegraph" a few days ago that the well-known Ulster flax expert, Mr. W. J. Megaw, has been commissioned by the Colonial Office to investigate flax production prospects in Kenya Colony.

The first attempts to grow flax in East Africa were made exactly 30 years ago at the Kabete Government Experimental Farm near Nairobi, and at the height of 5,600 feet above sea level. An active interest was taken in the project by the noted flax merchanting firm of Wigglesworth, and in 1911 they erected their first flax scutch-mill in the Colony.

It was definitely proved, in post-war years, that flax of excellent quality can be grown in the Kenya Highlands. Mr. Megaw's mission is evidence of the fact that Westminster has flax in mind. Flax is an essential war material, and the Empire's flax resources are relatively small, Ireland being the chief producer.

In Canada flax is grown primarily for the production of pedigree seed, which is much in demand in Ulster, and the bulk of the straw is converted into tow for upholstery purposes. Recently Mr. Jean B. Cloutier, head of the Co-operative Service for the Quebec Department of Agriculture, left Canada on a trip to Europe to study modern flax machinery and methods. I understand that plans are on foot to develop the production of fibre flax in Canada. A Courtrai expert has stated that Ontario flax fibre is fully equal in quality to that of the best Flemish fibre, but labour conditions have always hampered the industry.

Attempts are again being made to grow fibre flax in Australia. Last year about 1,000 acres were sown in Victoria, following the planting of 200 acres for experimental purposes in 1936. For many years New Zealand has produced "New Zealand flax," which is not real flax, but a hard cordage fibre yielded by the phormium plant. Now, however, the Dominion is experimenting with true flax, and I inspected some good samples recently at the Research Association.

Vital Danger.

Recent political events have awakened vivid war memories which bring forcibly to mind the danger in which the British Empire stands through not producing its own flax. It will be seen from the foregoing that the linen trade's raw material can be produced in the Dominions and Colonies if necessary, but probably at prohibitive rates under present or even normal conditions. Ulster is the heart of the British linen trade, and the Six Counties should be the headquarters of the British flax-growing industry.

It is significant that Germany, under Hitler, is rapidly becoming self-supporting in regard to flax. German flax production rose from 3,100 tons in 1933 to 33,900 tons in 1937, with prospects of another big increase this year. Hitler's flax call to German farmers is rather reminiscent of Nelson's famous signal at Trafalgar. "Hitler expects every German farmer to grow more flax this season. Shall the Fuhrer send his soldiers home for lack of drill uniforms, and shall the next generation give up marrying because there is no more flax in Germany for trousseaux? Every German loves a soldier and every German wants to see and must want to see a further increased population." Such patriotic appeals to the German farmer have been supplemented by premiums and sales prices fixed at roughly 50 per cent. above the world parity.

"MEAN OLD WORLD."

NEGRO'S CHANT BEFORE EXECUTION.

LONG WAIT IN DEATH CHAIR.

A young negro, Thomas B. Williams convicted of murder sat in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair and before the current was turned on sang songs and recited passages from the Bible for a quarter of an hour. It was the first execution in the State's new "automatic" electric chair, which is controlled by a push button.

Williams sang to witnesses and warders the spiritual "Lead Me On." He followed with the song "This is a mean old world."

The young negro bargaining time against death, then recited the Twenty-third Psalm, droning in a quavering voice "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Warden J. C. Woodward pressed a button, which sent the current surging through Williams's body.

BUILDING THEIR OWN ROAD.

An epic story of communal self help has come to light in Canada. After waiting a quarter of a century for railway facilities, the inhabitants of the Peace River district have set to work to build themselves a road through the Rocky Mountains.

The 85,000 inhabitants of this rich agricultural area, according to the Toronto "Financial Post" have been asking for a railway for 25 years in order to enable them to market grain through Pacific coast ports. They have now taken the matter into their own hands and a road eight feet wide and 130 miles long is being constructed from Rio Grande, Alberta, through a pass in the Rockies to Prince George, British Columbia, a point on the Canadian National Railway line to Prince Rupert.

The pass in question is believed to be the easiest and lowest pass through the mountains north of Missoula, Montana, and may conceivably be the easiest pass north of the Panama.

Failing to secure the desired co-operation from the railway administration, the Peace River people decided to build a road over this route.

Meetings were held throughout the Peace River country. Merchants offered free food and supplies for the enterprise. Ranchers, farmers, and even pioneers over sixty years of age offered labour.

Funds were raised, and by June last year twenty men, armed with picks, axes, and shovels, but notably lacking expensive equipment, had begun "blazing the trail."

By the end of August sixty miles of road had been cut from Rio Grande to Stony Lake. At the moment the road has reached Hansard, British Columbia, a point on the Canadian National Railway line from which a gravelled highway leads to Prince George.

About 95 miles of road await completion, and one important bridge has to be built. The pioneer builders claim that if the British Columbia Government will only provide an engineer, a supervisor, and the necessary steelwork, they will build the structure themselves without additional cost to the Government.

PRIESTHOOD DELAYED 48 YEARS.

The Rev. Alfredo Morotti, 58-year-old former travelling salesman and metal worker, whose ordination to the priesthood, a childhood ambition, was delayed 48 years by the necessity of supporting relatives and through other circumstances, officiated for the first time in St. Leo's Roman Catholic Church in Twenty-eighth Street, east of Fifth Avenue, New York.

Father Morotti, who was ordained in Rochester (New York State) last month, will return there in the autumn as the sixth priest assigned to the spiritual care of the 65,000 Italians in the city. Father Morotti will remain in New York with the Salesian Fathers until July 16, when he will sail on the Italian liner Conte di Savoie for a brief rest in his native city of Bologna.

Father Morotti, son of a Bolognese lawyer and a noblewoman, was placed in the preparatory seminary of the Archdiocese of Bologna at the age of 10, after an early childhood devoted to questions and concerns about religious things. At 16 his studies were interrupted by the necessity of helping to support his sickly, orphaned 18-year-old brother Paolo, who is now a lawyer in Bologna.

During succeeding years he worked as a teacher and as a travelling salesman through South and Central America. Twenty-five years ago he went to New York. He became a metal worker. Four years ago he was employed to demonstrate that art.

During all the years of secular employment, he continued to buy and study books of theology. Finally in 1935, the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, then Archbishop of Rochester, and now Archbishop of Detroit, sent for him, admitting him to study as a seminarian. Father Morotti finished the four-year course in three years.

DIVORCE FOR JEALOUSY.

The German Press are to announce the details of a new law unifying the regulations governing marriage and divorce throughout Greater Germany. New law includes several new grounds for divorce and renders invalid at one stroke the Canon Law which has hitherto governed marriage questions in Austria.

Divorce may be obtained if one of the partners is disturbed by a mania of one of the partners. "Mania" means such symptoms as exaggerated jealousy or miserliness bordering on insanity.

BRITISH BAR EXCELS AMERICAN.

The British Bar surpasses the American Bar in personnel despite an inferior system of law education in England, the alumni—old students—of Yale University Law School have been told.

One reason for the British superiority, said the President of the American Bar Association, Mr. Arthur T. Vanderbilt, was their refusal to countenance partnerships among barristers, and another was their sturdier physique.

"Although the British system of law education is miserable," he continued, "it produces what is by common consent the ablest Bar in the world.

"That is because the schools take only the best men and these men when they arrive realise that there is no chance of them going into a great office, attracting the attention of the boss, marrying his daughter, and playing golf forever after."

SUSPENSION BRIDGE EMPIRE'S LONGEST.

VANCOUVER (British Columbia), Saturday.—Cool-headed workmen are spinning a steel web high above Vancouver's harbour entrance that is expected to form the longest suspension bridge in the Empire.

Lion's Gate Bridge will carry three lanes of traffic across a main span 1,500 feet long and two side spans of 614 feet each when completed, possibly this autumn, Mr. Banks, resident engineer, said in an interview.

Special wire used in the strands of the two giant cables supporting the spans would, it is estimated, extend 3,600 miles. Altogether 122 cables bound into two groups of equal size, measuring 13½ inches in diameter, are stretched between two 364 feet towers at either end of the bridge to form the main support.

From the cables, at 36 feet intervals, suspending ropes hang in pairs to hold the roadway which was raised in sections from barmes beneath the framework. The bridge is designed to meet the needs of a city of 2,000,000 population, almost six times Greater Vancouver's present size.—Reuter.

MAN AND WIFE FOUND DEAD.

A husband and wife were found dead in a gas-filled room in their home at Abertillery (Mon.), yesterday. They were Mr. and Mrs. William James Cook, whose bodies were found in an upstairs room at Mount Pleasant Road by their son-in-law, who detected a strong smell of gas.

Mr. Cook, who formerly worked at a colliery, had been unemployed a number of years.

EXPLOSION OF BLAST FURNACE.

NINE MEN INJURED

BY MOLTEN METAL.

Nine men were injured in a blast furnace explosion which occurred on Friday night at the United Steel Co.'s works at Workington (Cumberland).

The furnace was about to be tapped when the molten metal suddenly burst through the sides of the furnace, and four distinct explosions followed at intervals of a few seconds.

Five workmen were taken to hospital suffering from burns, but four others were missing, and grave fears were at first felt for them.

It was discovered, however, that they had all made their escape in the opposite direction to that taken by the other workmen, and they were later found at the works ambulance, suffering from burns.

CRIME AS AID TO ARMY RELEASE.

COURT MARTIAL COUNSEL

AND AN "ERRONEOUS IDEA."

An "erroneous idea," said to be widespread among recruits that by committing an offence they can get out of the Army was mentioned by Captain H. G. T. Faithfull (defending) in a court-martial at Brompton Barracks, Chatham, yesterday.

Sapper Norman Taylor Armstrong (21), Sapper John Patrick Gilmore (19), and Driver Daniel Field (18), of the Royal Engineers, were accused of stealing civilian clothing belonging to other soldiers, stealing articles from a car belonging to Kenneth Bills, desertion, and escaping from confinement. They pleaded not guilty to desertion.

Armstrong and Field, who were separately charged with using violence to a person in whose custody they were placed were found not guilty and were acquitted of that charge on Thursday night.

Armstrong and Field were also charged with releasing Gilmore from custody, it being alleged that Armstrong and Field overcame a regimental policeman, gagged and bound him, and escaped with Gilmore.

Evidence of character was called yesterday.

Edgar Field, of Liverpool Road, Islington, London, Field's father, said that Field had served in the Supplementary Reserve with an excellent character, winning a bronze medal as the best boy in his squad.

Lieut. G. L. Galloway, assistant adjutant, said that Armstrong, Gilmore, and Field had been convicted at Chatham Police Court of taking Mr. Bills' car without his consent. Field was an excellent recruit, and one of the best men in his squad.

Armstrong, asking for leniency, pleaded, "My mother is a widow with six children, and I am the only one that can support her."

Captain Faithfull said that Gilmore's mother was also a widow in poor financial circumstances.

The Court's finding will be announced later.

REDUCED U.S. COTTON ACREAGE.

WASHINGTON, Friday.—The United States Department of Agriculture reported to-day that cotton in cultivation on July 1 totalled 26,904,000 acres as compared with 34,471,000 acres a year ago, and that the 1938 farm programme allotment was 27,527,569 acres.

Decreases are reported from all States, and the acreage, which is the smallest recorded since the Department began keeping records in 1909, constitutes 78 per cent. of last year's total.

Although the reduction is not estimated, it is thought that it would be about 11,750,000 bales on the basis of past average production.—Exchange.

WITH BOY SCOUTS.

THE SUMMER CAMP.

YEAR'S BIGGEST EVENT.

LOCATION OF ULSTER GROUPS.

The one big event every year in the life of a Scout troop is the summer camp. It is the Scoutmaster's greatest opportunity of getting to know his boys by living with them for a week or fortnight under canvas, and it is the boy's opportunity of putting into practice all the things he has learnt in theory in the clubroom and his chance of passing out in certain tests. It is during the summer camp that a Scout proves the worth of his training in self-reliance and resource. Whether the camp is organised on the individual lines of the "patrol" system or as a complete troop unit, every Scout shares in its management. There are tents to erect, fires to make, cooking to do, kitchens to build, and other innumerable things to be done in the well-ordered life of a Scoup camp. The Scoutmaster directs and keeps a fatherly eye on the senior boys appointed to organise and carry out transport work, food requirements, tours, camp duties, etc.

In the following complete list of Belfast Scout camps it will be seen that no less than seven troops have arranged to camp at Aughengillen, the Glasgow Scout camp, and four other troops from different parts of Ulster have also arranged to go there. The attraction, of course, is the Empire Exhibition.

WHERE THE BOYS ARE.

The 2nd Belfast (Mountpottinger Presbyterian Church) will camp at the Warren, Ballywalter; 3rd Belfast (Woodstock Road), Bryansford, Newcastle; 9th Belfast (Mersey Street Mission), Aughengillan; 10th Belfast (M'Mordie Memorial Scout Hall), Brynbach Camp, Denbigh; 18th Belfast (Willowfield Parish), Aughengillan; 19th Belfast Cubs (The Mount), Herdstown, Donaghadee; 19th Belfast (Scouts), Tullykin, Killyleagh; 22nd Belfast (Castlereagh Road), Aughengillan; 24th Belfast (Knock Methodist Church) (Cubs), Saintfield House; 24th Belfast (Scouts), Castleward, Strangford; 28th Belfast (St. Patrick's), Aughengillan; 80th Belfast (Grove School), Killyleagh; 37th Belfast (Lisbon Street), Llandudno; 35th Belfast (Albertbridge Congregational), Aughengillan; 51st Belfast (Orangefield Parish), Magilligan; 66th Belfast (Cregagh Presbyterian), Penrhyn Bay, Wales; 59th Belfast (St. Mark's Parish), Aughengillan; 26th Belfast (Gibson Park), Scalpsie Bay, Isle of Bute; 73rd Belfast (St. Donard's), Aughengillan; 11th Rover Crew to Leamington Spa; 45th Belfast (St. George's), Bolton-le-Sands; 74th (R.B.A.I.), Castleward, Strangford; 63rd Belfast (Ligoniel Methodist), Clonallon, Islandmagee; 56th Belfast (Esther Street), Brynbach Scout Camp, Denbigh; 41st Belfast, the Warren, Ballywalter; 50th Belfast, Magilligan; 23rd Belfast (Whiteabbey), Dundressan, Islandmagee; 34th Belfast (North Belfast Mission), Ballyobecan, Ballywalter.

THE PROVINCIAL TROOPS.

Of the numerous provincial troops, Dungannon Royal School Troop has gone to Sweden; 1st Newry (Downshire Road Presbyterian) to Bridlington; 1st Greenisland to Harplaw, Largs; Ballymacash (Lisburn and District) to Harplaw, Largs; Ballyclare High School Troop to Overchurch, Cheshire; Omagh Troop to Weymss Bay, Ayrshire; 3rd Larne to Airdrie, Scotland; 1st Carrick to Aughengillan; 2nd and 3rd Newtownards to Strangford; 1st Lurgan to Aughengillan; and the 2nd Portadown and 1st Tandragee also to Aughengillan.

Knowing the immense amount of films exposed each year on Scout activities, much of which produces pictures of real merit, the Belfast County Scout Council has decided this year to run a competition in order to bring some of these to light. The competition is divided into four sections, open to Rovers, Scouts, and Cubs—1, camping scenes; 2, Scout portraits; 3, Scout work or play; 4, oddities (unusual angles, etc.). There is no entrance fee, and entries must reach the Ulster Scout Headquarters on or before August 15. Prizes to be awarded in each section will be enlargments of the winning snaps.

TEH INTERNATIONAL CHALET.

The Boy Scouts International Chalet at Kandersteg, Switzerland, will be visited this summer by several parties of British Scouts. In the Bernese Oberland this chalet, which is Scout property, can accommodate over 200 Scouts, and there is camping ground for hundreds more. Each year a growing number of boys from many countries of the world meet together among the glories of the Swiss mountains and gain health, adventure, and enjoyment when cultivating mutual friendships and understanding.

A great welcome was accorded H.R.H. the Princess Royal at Beaudesert Park, near Rugeley, when she opened the new permanent county camping ground for Scouts and Guides on Saturday last. A part of the beautiful park, 123 acres in extent, has been presented to Scouts and Guides to commemorate the reign of King George V. Thousands of Scouts and Guides took part in the opening ceremony.

SCOTTISH BOXING CHAMPIONSHIP.

ALEC BELL TRIUMPHANT

IN HEAVYWEIGHT DECIDER.

By defeating Bob Scally, Broomhouse, on points over 15 rounds at Edinburgh on Friday evening, Alec Bell, of Leith, won the vacant Scottish Heavyweight Championship.

Scally was conceding 12lb in weight, in addition to height and reach, but he made a splendid fight of it, and rarely allowed his adversary to settle. Bell was the more polished boxer, but was hesitant and missed many opportunities.

The closing rounds were very fast. Bell was the more methodical, but none too settled under the furious onslaught of Scally. The latter marred his work by holding at close quarters, particularly in the closing round, when Bell made a determined rally. Scally put up a fine display, but was narrowly outpointed by a better boxer.

S. AFRICAN BOXERS' AIR THRILL.

DURBAN, Friday.—South Africa today feared a repetition of the disastrous air crash in the Limpopo region several weeks ago, when members of the R.A.F. boxing team touring South Africa lost their lives. The fear arose this afternoon when three airspeed envoys, carrying eleven South African Athletic Federation boxers to Durban from Pretoria for charity bouts for funds for the dependants of the victims of the Limpopo crash were reported missing.

Two 'planes were later found forced down in North Natal and the other was located on the coast to the south of Durban. No one was hurt.

The 'planes became separated in a dense fog and storm over the Drakensberg, and they each made for the nearest landing place. The 'planes are of the same type as that which crashed in the Limpopo tragedy.—Exchange.

WORKLESS BENEFIT.

HOLIDAY AGREEMENT REACTION.

SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY.

ULSTER MINISTRY DECISION.

An important decision was made known in Belfast to-day in relation to the unemployment benefit of men in the engineering and shipbuilding industry who receive holiday payments under the agreement of August 12, 1937, between the Engineering and Allied Employers' National Federation and the Engineering Joint Trades Movement.

Some time ago a deputation of the Belfast Trades' Union Council had an interview with Mr. John F. Gordon, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labour, who informed the members that the Ministry was awaiting the decision of the umpire in Great Britain on a further test case arising under the Agreement.

This decision was conveyed to the officials of the Trades' Union Council today, and the position briefly is:—

(a) Men temporarily suspended from work over the holiday period, who receive payments under the Agreement, will be debarred thereby from being regarded as unemployed and entitled to benefit during the holiday.

(b) Men finally discharged within a week of the commencement of the holiday period will be debarred from benefit during the holiday—or such a number of days of it as are held to be covered by the holiday payment, where it amounts to less than a week's pay.

(c) Men finally discharged more than a week before commencement of the holiday period will not be regarded as being debarred from benefit for the holiday period by the payment.

Paragraph (c) will not apply to the cases of men who, having been employed for a period of less than four weeks, receive the holiday payment at the time of discharge throughout the year. In such cases, payment will debar the recipient from being regarded as unemployed during the number of days immediately following discharge held to be covered by the payment.

THE BISLEY MEETING

FRIDAY'S COMPETIONS.

THE ELCHO SHIELD.

The final positions in the Elcho Shield were:—England, 1,633; Scotland, 1,628; Ireland, 1,563.

Two of the most interesting features of the match were the fine performances of S. F. Wheeler and A. H. Vicars in the English team.

Wheeler, who is a member of the West of Scotland Rifle Club and works in Glasgow, had never used a match rifle in his life until Saturday last. He made the top score of 213. Vicars was using a home-made rifle, which he had put together himself, and he made the second highest total, a point fewer than Wheeler.

THE CHALKED SIDEWALKS

Critic Of Donaghadee's Council

SOMETHING BETTER TO DO

Sir,—Will you allow me to give support to your reader's letter regarding advertisements on sidewalks at Donaghadee. As to Manor Street Council employes and others, all residents of the town use this supposedly closed street to break all speed records, and the same applies to the Commons, where visitors think it is safe for their children to play, but several children have had narrow escapes with cycles rushing past them.

Would it not be better for the Urban Council to put the ratepayers' money to better use than spend it on a lot of nonsense getting bylaws passed to stop the boatmen writing on the footpaths. After all these men actually bring visitors to the resort by their boating, fishing, etc.

When present Council took office over from the Commissioner we were told all kinds of tales about a new cemetery, car park, etc. Regarding the new cemetery, this is badly needed in Donaghadee. With all the training for air raids, etc., there is not a place in Donaghadee to bury the dead if such a calamity di occur. In conclusion, nobody fell over a few chalk marks on the street yet, so let the boatmen alone because if one does not desire to go in the boats no one is forced.—Yours, etc., COMMON SENSE.

CYCLES ON THE COMMONS.

Sir,—In regard to "Resident's" complaint about bicycles on the Commons at Donaghadee, which is correct, there are other wrong uses being made of the grounds. I have noticed youths kicking a ball from one end of the Commons path to the other. Also a few motorists, instead of putting their car on the parking place, leave them at the entrance gate on Millisle Road, thereby making it difficult for other cars passing in. I have even seen a car parked on the grass alongside the putting green.—Yours, etc., X.Y.Z.

RETURN TO EIRE ADVICE.

Sir,—I would suggest to "Medico" that he return to Eire when he has neither work nor "dole," instead of "sponging" on some of his kind-hearted Ulster friends and also increasing Ulster's unemployed figures. We have too many like "Medico" trying to qualify to live on the British Government's unemployment fund. Does he expect an unemployed "pension" after being fed and paid by the British Army for three years? I think they have treated him very well. I would like to know why "Medico" joined the British Army in the first place, and why he was discharged after such a short period of service. Evidently he would prefer drawing the "dole" to working.

Surely this will give some of our politicians an insight of how Ulster is imposed upon by such people as "Medico."—Yours, etc., "ULSTERMAN."

Sir,—I read wich much amusement the letter by "Medico." Does this young man consider that he is honouring Ulster by his presence? If he is proud of belonging to Eire, why does he remain in Ulster? There are plenty of Ulster boys qualified for all jobs without "foreigners" coming as interlopers. The British Army cannot have been proud to have "Medico" in its ranks, otherwise he would hardly have been discharged after such a short period. Considering that the Army is always requiring young men, "Medico" has not been altogether flattered.—Yours, etc. "LOYALIST."

GREATER BELFAST SCHEME.

Sir,—Re the boundary scheme of the Belfast Corporation, I heartily agree with "Breda," "Newtownbreda," and others in their opposition, and I admire those who voted against the Bill in the Corporation. I would like to ask those who voted for the extension if they informed the electors that they were going to increase the rates by having a Greater Belfast.

The state of Belfast and district does not want an increase in anything except trade.—Yours, etc., "J. B. W."
Newtownbreda.

Sir,—I have read in your columns several letters re the extension of the city boundary, written mostly by people from selfish motives. As a boy grows into a man he requires a larger suit of clothes. As our families grow larger we require larger houses, and as a city grows bigger it requires its boundaries extended, and Belfast has burst its waistline in every direction. All cities have extended their boundaries as expansion demanded, and Belfast is no exception to the rule. If people living outside the boundary have to pay a little extra taxes they will get in return the city services—trams, buses, gas, water, electricity, sewage, footpaths, lighting, and police supervision. I understand the districts to be taken in are to be exempt from extra taxation for five years. I would propose that this be extended to ten years.—Yours, etc., "J.H.A."
Cregagh.

THE OPEN BIBLE.

Sir,—It is rarely I am prompted to encroach upon your space, so I trust you will allow me to make a few comments on the subject of an Open Bible, which, I notice, is engaging attention at the moment. Our Lord never wrote a line of Scripture. He never once commanded His Apostles to do so, except when He directed St. John to write the Apocalypse. When He sent them on their Apostolic errand He said "Go, teach all nations." "Preach the Gospel to every creature." The art of printing was not invented until the 15th century. How utterly impossible therefore it was to supply everyone with a copy of the Scriptures up to this time. We often hear the phrase "The Bible and the Bible only must be our guide."

So in view of what I have written regarding Our Lord's commands, together with the fact that printing was unknown up to about 1440, would some of your correspondents or lecturers kindly inform me how the people were guided or attained salvation up to the time printing was invented. Even in our day of education and enlightenment, and with the aid of the printing press, not to mention Bible Associations, it is a very difficult job indeed to supply every missionary country with Bibles printed in the language of the tribes and peoples for whom they are intended. I would also point out to the thousands of people who could not read, even though they had a Bible in their hands; hence an Open Bible as a means of salvation would render many men's salvation not only difficult, but quite impossible. An Open Bible certainly, but not on its perusal or non-perusal does a man's salvation depend.—Yours, etc., "THOUGHTFUL."

HOLIDAYS AND DOMESTIC PETS.

Sir,—Many of the smaller domestic animals often share the family holiday nowadays. Dogs are taken in motor-cars, and many are carried by the railway companies without difficulty or formality. Sometimes, however, it is impossible for owners to take the animals with them, and when this is the case we beg that they will not fail to make proper provision for their animal friends before leaving home.

There are now many excellent boarding establishments in Belfast and district (including the U.S.P.C.A. Veterinary Hospital at Whiteabbey) where, accommodation permitting, they will be well cared for and made as happy as possible during the owner's absence.

If, however, any of your readers know of any animal having been thoughtlessly left behind, without satisfactory arrangements being made, we shall be grateful for information, and it will be attended to immediately.—Yours, etc.,

ULSTER AND INDUSTRIES.

Sir,—During the last two years we have heard a lot about the free factory sites, etc., and the prospect of getting new industries. With about 100,000 unemployed, God knows we need those new industries badly. But while we are trying for these new industries which may (or may not) materialise, we are allowing some of our principal industries to disappear. Works are being closed down, the machinery scrapped, and the buildings demolished. This is particularly true of the bleaching, dyeing and printing industry. Within the next few months another large bleach works is likely to be added to the long list of those closed or demolished. Don't let us close our eyes to the fact that unless drastic action is taken our bleaching and dyeing industry will soon be almost a thing of the past. Yet this industry is a most important one, and is the main source of employment in many towns and country districts.

Probably some of these works are being closed on account of bad trade or lack of finance, but others, I understand, are being bought by large English combines and closed for the purpose of eliminating competition and transferring their trade to English works.

I am not in a position to state how many of these works are in the later category. If our Government have the interests of Ulster at heart they must investigate the matter and make a determined effort to maintain the bleaching industry. Being loyalists should not mean the sacrifice of our industries on the altar of English prosperity.

This matter should surely be of vital interest to every Ulsterman, yet, judging by the letters appearing in your paper, many seem to be more interested in the doings of Cromwell or the nationality of Mr. De Valera. Let Ulster awake. We have got to either push or be pushed.—Yours, etc., "LOYAL ULSTER WORKER."

CELTIC DOG-RACING.

ULSTER CHAMPION STAKES.

CLONARNEY TOWN'S VICTORY.

Recognised as a poor stayer and with conditions in consequence all against him, Urbanity ran one of his best races for some time when beating Grey Coat by two lengths in 30.81 at Celtic Park last night.

First away and setting up an early lead of half a dozen lengths he was in an invincible position at half-way.

Lack of stamina told its tale in the run down the home straight, and Grey Coat gradually wore him down until only a couple of lengths divided them at the finish.

Even this performance paled into insignificance in comparison with the victory of Clonarney Town in the Ulster Championship Stakes.

Packed with thrills from start to finish, despite bumping on the turns in which the winner came off worst, the crowd had no idea as to which of the four was to prove best until the winner shot the turn into the home straight, and pulled away to score with ease.

Up to that stage it looked anybody's race, with Strong Mutton weaving in and out, and seeming unable to steer a clear course.

The winner thoroughly deserved to win, for he was the one to suffer most in the mix-ups on the turn.

Strong Mutton had clocked 30.12secs. in a solo gallop a couple of days earlier, but failed to run to within half a second of his time, being lucky to beat Publican's Pride for third place.

FOURTH ROUND RESULTS.

BAD WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The wet, boisterous weather during the last match period had a bad effect on some of the scores, and more unfavourable conditions for outdoor shooting could hardly be experienced. Bessbrook and East Belfast "A" had a good tight match, the former winning by three points. Springfield had 21 points in hand in their match with the Argonauts, whilst Bangor had a comfortable victory at the expense of Poyntzpass. East Belfast "B" sprung a surprise on C.I.Y.M.S., whom they defeated by five points. R.U.C. and Clandeboye, two of the undefeated teams, returned the same score, and both live to fight another day.

The only double possible of the period was returned by D. H. Linton, Bessbrook, to whom I pass on hearty congratulations.

TOOK FOUR PUTTS ON TWO GREENS.

YET WORTH GOLF CHAMPION

R. A. WHITCOMBE WINS "OPEN."

The new British Open golf champion is R. A. Whitcombe, the youngest of three famous golfers from the West Country, and the first of them to win the game's highest honour. He was runner-up to Henry Cotton last year.

In a gale at Sandwich yesterday, Whitcombe did 75 and 78, and returned an aggregate of 295. He played grand golf in the conditions, but must be the first champion who took four putts on two greens.

James Adams, who a few years ago was at Newcastle, Co. Down, was runner-up for the third time in two seasons, and Cotton, a brave third, with a final round of 74—the best performance of Friday.

So the day ended with Whitcombe the winner, Adams runner-up at 297, and Cotton a brave third at 298.

The winning score was the highest since T. D. Armour won at Carnoustie with 296 in 1931, but its greatness may perhaps be judged from the fact that the leading amateur, E. F. Storey, had an aggregate of 316, that C. J. H. Tolley had a total of 317, that H. Thomson had 319, and that the English amateur champion, J. J. F. Pennink, finished at 320.

J. Adams (Royal Liverpool) 70, 71, 78, 78—297.

T. H. Cotton (Ashbridge) 74, 73, 77, 74—298.

A. H. Padgham (Sundridge Park) 74, 72, 75, 82—303.

J. J. Busson (Pannal) 71, 69, 83, 80—303.

R. Burton (Sale) 71, 69, 78, 85—303.

A. Dailey (Wanstead) 73, 72, 80, 78—303.

BOYCE'S SIX FEET POLE JUMP.

Norway led Britain by 30 points to 29 at the end of the first part of their international athletic match at the White City, London, on Friday night.

Britain with a powerful team—Holmes, Pennington, Roberts, and Brown—scored another fine win in the 1,000 metres relay, which they took with 60 yards to spare, Brown finishing gloriously after Roberts had obtained the lead.

F. R. Webster was unable to appear for Britain in the pole vault owing to an injured ankle. E. Boyce, the long jumper, substituted, cleared 6ft., and gained a point for his effort.

MRS. BRADMAN BAN.

MANAGER JEANES' CABLE.

NEW VOTE MAY BE TAKEN.

SYDNEY, Saturday.—A cable from W. H. Jeanes, manager of the Australian cricket team in England, has been received here by Mr. H. Heydon, a member of the Board of Control. Mr. Heydon declines to divulge the contents of the message, and is forwarding it to Dr. Allen Robertson, chairman of the Board. Dr. Robertson will not receive it until Monday.

It is reported from Melbourne that Dr. Robertson is preparing for a further telegraphic vote on the banning of Mrs. D. G. Bradman journeying to England. Despite the announcement made by Dr. Morton, another member of the Board, that only a simple majority vote is necessary to alter their decision, Dr. Robertson says that a three-fourths majority is still necessary.

There is some Press criticism at the dilatoriness of the Board in not telegraphing the text of the message to Dr. Robertson. This would have enabled an earlier start to be made on the telegraphic vote to lift the ban on Mrs. Bradman going to England, and removed the unsettling effect the matter is having upon Bradman and his team.—Press Association Special.

London Diary of an Ulsterwoman

THE Duchess of Abercorn was amongst those summoned to attend the third [illegible] the season. Amongst those in [illegible] on the King was the Earl [illegible] Several Ulsterwomen were [illegible] Mrs. Gallaher, widow of [illegible] Alex. Gallaher, D.S.O., pre- [illegible] Mrs. James Mitchell and Miss Mitchell of Belfast. For her [illegible] Mrs. Mitchell chose a model of [illegible] net embroidered all over in [illegible] design in crystals and bugles [illegible] Her train of cyclamen net [illegible] godets at the foot was em- [illegible] in a similar design as the [illegible]

[illegible] Cynthia Moodie was pre- [illegible] the Viscountess Brentford. [illegible] Moodie is a daughter of Mr. and [illegible] Lindsay Moodie, who used to [illegible] Cyprus Avenue, Knock. Her [illegible] that time worked in the City [illegible] Belfast. He was very well known [illegible] circles and was a member [illegible] Queen's Contingent O.T.C. At [illegible] he is on the Stock Exchange. [illegible] An uncle of the debutante [illegible] Alderman Doran, of Belfast.

Silver Lame.

Viscountess Brentford, who presented Miss Moodie, chose a frock of pastel pink [illegible] made with a full skirt formed of [illegible] of sunray pleating and a pleated [illegible] bodice. She also carried a pastel pink ostrich feather fan. Miss Moodie's dress was of off-white and silver lame [illegible] full skirt and an off the shoulder neckline.

Lady Clanmorris, who presented the Hon. Mrs. John Bingham, wore a [illegible] blue frock embroidered with crystal beads. The train of silver sequins was lined with rose tinted chiffon to tone with her shaded ostrich feather fan. Mrs. Bingham selected a heavy ivory slipper satin dress, the bodice trimmed with frills forming a shell design. She carried a white ostrich feather fan. Lady (David) Reid wore a golden brown lace frock embroidered on the bodice with self-coloured sequins. The brown velvet train was lined with satin.

A wedding of considerable interest to Northern Ireland people was celebrated in London on Thursday. It was that of Mr. Edward Noel Evans and Miss Audrey Mary Leathers. An old Methodist College boy, Mr. Evans, is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Evans and a grandson of the late Rev. Dr. Evans, of Belfast, who was for many years a Commissioner of National Education in Ireland. His father has taken a leading part in all Ulster organisations in London, and has also kept in close touch with his native province. Following the ceremony at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, a reception was held by the bride's mother in the Savoy Hotel. Amongst those who accepted invitations were Sir Menus and Lady O'Keeffe, the Vicomte and Vicomtesse du Halgoult, Sir Archibald and Lady Hurd, and Lord and Lady Hyndley.

Sir John Lavery's Grand-daughter

A debutante in whom I am much interested is Hon. Ann Moira Forbes-Sempill, Sir John Lavery's elder granddaughter. She wore the tartan sash of her clan with her gown of white slipper satin. She was presented by her grandmother, Dowager Lady Sempill, magnificent in black velvet and old lace.

Miss Forbes-Sempill, who is just 18, lost her mother just three years ago, five months after her father had succeeded to the title. As she has no brother she is heir to the barony. The barony goes back to 1489, and has twice been held by a woman.

The ninth baron, Anne, died in 1695, the 16th baron, Maria Janet, died in 1884. The present Baron Sempill is the airman who became famous as the Master of Sempill. His daughter made her first flight at the age of two, which was something of an achievement 16 years ago.

Countess of Ulster.

I saw many well known Northern Ireland people at the opening of the Ulster Room at the Overseas League. The Duchess of Abercorn, who presided at the ceremony, made an excellent chairman, a short speech, and the whole proceedings were got through very quickly. The Duchess of Gloucester, who was referred to as the Countess of Ulster, looked very attractive, she is still a trifle nervous when speaking in public, but her absolute naturalness and charm win all hearts. Little Virginie Seymour, the grand daughter of the Duchess of Abercorn, presented H.R.H. with a bouquet and then rushed hurriedly and timidly away.

Miss Phyllis Cowan, the hon secretary of the Overseas League branch in Belfast came over for the ceremony, and she has every reason to be pleased with its success. The room looks very nice, and the paintings on the walls by prominent Ulster artists were much admired. The only artist I saw present was Wm. Conor.

Mrs. M'Mordie.

I was pleased to see there Mrs. M'Mordie, who had come up specially from Devon for the ceremony. She is looking very well indeed, and she told me that, although she misses all her friends in and around Belfast, she enjoys living in Devonshire, for, amongst other reasons, it enables her to see her grandchildren frequently. I had also a chat with Mrs. Ethel Lewis, formerly of Belfast. I heard from her that her younger daughter, Lalage, is promising to make a brilliant actress. She has been studying with the London Theatre Group and recently played the part of Electra. Miss Lewis is going to take up stage work professionally.

Queen Victoria Eugenie was the guest of honour the other night at a dinner party given by Lord and Lady Londonderry Other guests were the Infanta Cristina, the Duke of Alba, the Earl and Countess of Cromer, the Countess of Midleton, Viscount Hailsham, Lord and Lady Kelmsley, Lord Hardinge of Penshurst, Baron Franckenstein and Mr. Henry and Lady Honor Channon.

Gaelic Music.

Following the dinner there was a recital of Gaelic music. Londonderry House has now become known for its recitals of Gaelic music; several have been held there. Lady Londonderry has an especial love for that type of song. Lord Londonderry was amongst those at the Overseas League function, he did not take any part in the formal proceedings. His daughter, Lady Maureen Stanley, presided at the meeting this week of the Pioneer Health Centre, and made an appeal for funds to further the experimental work which the centre does.

Queen Victoria Eugenie and the Infanta Maria Cristina were amongst those who this week helped a London Infant Welfare Centre. A series of exhibition tennis matches and an American tournament had been organised. The Infanta Cristina who has been the guest of the Londonderrys at Mountstewart, took part in the American doubles. She played as Miss Cristina Greville. Amongst those watching the matches were Priscilla, Countess Annesley, the Earl and Countess of Cavan and Miss Daphne Mulholland.

Ideal for Summer Wear.

Heir to Lord Dufferin

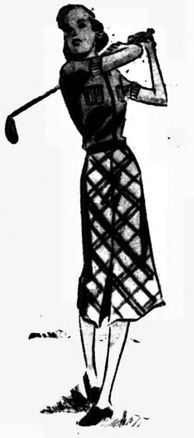
A son was born to-day to the Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava, whose husband is Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Colonies.

The Marquis, who is 29, is one of the youngest members of the Government, but has taken a prominent part in the Conservative party organisation and the Junior Imperial League.

The Marchioness was formerly Miss Maureen Guinness. They have two daughters, Lady Caroline and Lady Perdita Blackwood, born in 1931 and 1934.

Both mother and son are doing extremely well, it was stated this morning.

THE VOGUE OF LINEN



EVENING dresses of cotton or linen in one of their numerous forms are just the thing for summer dances. They look fresh and cool, and not too heavy or formal, and there greatest advantage is, perhaps, the fact that they are washable. You can choose the palest of colours, as well as white, frock being freshly laundered every single time you wear it.

What a great advantage this fact is—for summer dresses simply must look speckless if they are to be attractive.

But do be sure to ask the salesman whether the fabric of the dress you are buying really is washable or not, because the washability of a material is sometimes rather difficult to judge unless you happen to be an expert in these matters.

For Slim Figures.

White is probably the ideal choice for washable evening dresses—that is, of course, for slender wearers. white organdie, sprinkled all over with tiny white embroidered flowers, or with a small, all-over openwork design, is charming for this purpose.

There are, too, organdies and other cottons which are woven to form a kind of lacy effect, while other organdies are perfectly plain and look well combined with many rows of narrow white lace.

Some times we see a silk grosgrain bodice, very small and fairly high waisted, with practically no back at all, and very little front, too, set above the fullest of organdie skirts, billowing out and made even fuller by additional frills at the hem.

Other dresses are made of organdie which has a faintly over-checked design upon it achieved by slightly thicker threads in self-colour. These coarser threads give additional stiffness to the fabric, and dresses made of it are generally cut on very simple lines, with full skirts and small, neat bodices having tiny shoulder straps and lots and lots of white flowers adorning the front.

Sometimes the entire bodice is sewn all over with small white flowers placed close together. Pastel tinted organdie dresses are trmmed with flowers in the same manner—the flowers always matching the colour of the fabric.

If It's Fine Linen.

Very fine handkerchief linen is another popular fabric for summer evening frocks. It looks lovely in printed designs. Delicately coloured flowers printed on a white ground can look most attractive made into a dress with a very low-cut bodice and shoulder straps twisted and draped in a most sophisticated manner.

Linen lace in lovely colours, such as dusty pink, turquoise blue, or soft pale green, is responsible for some smart evening dresses.

This type of fabric is also made into the more sophisticated kind of frock, and one example which I liked immensely had quite a formal air. The wide skirt curved upwards to a very plain bodice, which came to a point at the throat. The point was slit downwards for a few inches, and the top was held up by the most slender of shoulder straps.

Bonnets and Rompers.

Beach wear fashions are more interesting than ever this season.

The latest innovation takes the form of a very "feminine" romper suit made of shantung silk. It has small sleeves, trimmed with frills, and the lower part of this one-piece garment consists of a very brief pair of shorts, the legs of which are also decorated with self-frills.

Another type of beach suit is made of figured linen in gay colours. It has the usual buttoned skirt over shorts and brassiere top, and also has a protective sun-bonnet made of the same fabric.

Necks Are Seen.

The new high hair-dressing modes certainly call for beautiful necks, and while most women who value their good looks pay strict attention to the front of their necks, the back of the neck is apt to be forgotten.

Very often the back of the neck needs bleaching and the skin needs a special softening treatment.

Sometimes a woman who has, until recently, had her hair cut short at the hair-line cannot have her hair brushed up at the back until she has had the "bristly" hair at the nape of the neck removed with a depilitary.

With Edwardian Coiffures.

This Edwardian hair-dressing style, showing the hair brushed up at the neck, always has the hair piled high in curls at the top of the head.

While this style is lovely for the evening, it is not quite so successful in the day time, when it is apt to be crushed by your newest hat.

It is, therefore, an excellent plan to invest in a little bunch of curls to match your own natural tresses for wear in the evening. If carefully chosen and properly worn, it is quite indetectable.

MIGHT OF BRITISH NAVY.

REARMAMENT PROGRESS.

BIG INCREASE IN POWER.

So rapid has been the progress of naval rearmament that the aggregate tonnage of new British warships now building is almost half as great as that of the entire British Navy of 1935 (writes the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent).

It is only 2½ years since the first units of this enormous new fleet were ordered. They were the Afridi and six sister destroyers of the big "Tribal" class, the last of which will be completed during the next three months. Their completion marks the initial stage of a naval construction programme unparalleled in peace time, and which will take a further [illegible] years to mature.

[illegible] battleships of 35,000 tons.
[illegible] aircraft carriers of 23,000 tons.

MORE BATTLESHIPS.

[illegible] battleships of 35,000 tons.

Two battleships of 40,000 tons.
One aircraft carrier of 23,000 tons.
Four cruisers of 8,000 tons.
Three cruisers of 5,450 tons.
Three submarines.

Side by side with new construction an immense programme for modernising the older vessels of the Navy was put in hand. In addition to battleships and battle cruisers, which are being virtually rebuilt, re-engined and brought up to date in armament and protection, nearly 20 cruisers are on the list for reconstruction, the majority as anti-aircraft ships.

NORTHERN RUGBY LEAGUE.

REPORTS OF MEN CAUTIONED.

Mr. A. A. Bonner, the chairman of the Management Committee of the Northern Rugby League at a joint meeting of the Management Committee and League secretaries at Blackpool on Friday, told the meeting that the Management Committee had decided that next season there would be reports from referees of every match, not only with regard to players sent off the field but with regard to men cautioned.

Pointing out that last season the suspension list was far too big, he said that any man who was cautioned would have his name sent to the Management Committee, and it might be that players would be suspended without being off the field, and suspension would have to be extended if it were found that players were being cautioned match after match.

BELFASTMAN JAILED.

ATTACK DESCRIBED IN COURT.

Alphonso Forte, jun., aged 37, 176 Tate's Avenue, Belfast, was sent to prison for a month at the City Custody Court to-day for assaulting his father, Alphonso Forte, sen., on July 6. Mr. W. Weatherup (instructed by Mr. B. Campbell) prosecuted.

The father, whose left eye was bandaged, said that on July 6 he sent accused for some ice, and subsequently was informed that he had been knocked down by a motor-car, and was in hospital. When accused returned that evening he said, "You don't care what happens to me." He began to abuse witness, and knocked him down, and started to batter him on the face. Witness had to have his wounds dressed in hospital. Accused was subject to fits, and witness did not want him back, as he was afraid of him.

Mrs. Myrtle Hutchman said when she heard screams from the house she got in by the window, and found accused "murdering" his father. He would have killed him if her husband and another man had not come to the rescue.

Accused said he was about to lift the ice on to a tram at Bradbury Place when something happened, and the next thing he knew was that he was in the Royal Victoria Hospital. They told him at first that he had been knocked down by a car, but Constable A. Johnston, who brought him to the hospital, said he had had a fit, and was not knocked down. When he returned home his father got angry because witness had not returned via the Donegall Road, and threw a teapot at witness, and subsequently struck him. Witness only struck his father in self-defence.

A NEW AIR RECORD.

IN view of the great and increasing importance of aircraft in modern warfare, the latest exploit of the British Royal Air Force is of no small value. It shows that, even if we neglected this part of the national defences in the years immediately following the war, we now possess machines and pilots equal to the best that the world can produce. On Friday afternoon four aircraft belonging to the Royal Air Force accomplished the longest non-stop flight until now carried out by any organised unit of aeroplanes. Leaving Cranwell, in Lincolnshire, they flew to a point near Bahrein, on the Persian Gulf, and thence turned westward to Ismailia, where they landed after traversing a distance of 4,300 miles. Vickers - Wellesley machines were employed, being fitted with Bristol Pegasus XXII. engines. The time occupied was about thirty-two hours, and the average height attained was 10,000 feet. Six European countries were crossed by the airmen during the journey. The longest distance previously traversed without a stop by an organised unit of aeroplanes was a 3,320 miles passage across the Atlantic from Dakar, on the West Coast of Africa, to Rio de Janeiro last January.

On that occasion a unit of the Italian Air Force attained a new record, which has now been eclipsed. The Italian Air Force for some time past has devoted itself largely to long flights in mass formation, and the recent visit of one of its squadrons to Derry on a trip across the Atlantic is well remembered. The carrying out of flights of this kind shows that no district, however remote from the firing line, can be considered free from the danger of attack by air in time of war. Inland cities like Berlin, Vienna, and Moscow cannot now be considered any more immune from air raids than seaport towns. This consideration should have weight with the dictators of some European nations who are given to indulge in loose talk with regard to war possibilities. We should feel reluctant to engage in retaliatory measures of this kind, but the knowledge that we are able to do so effectively will act as a strong deterrent to those who may be inclined to take aggressive action against us. The achievement reflects much credit on the capacity of the officers and men of the Royal Air Force, and also shows the progress which is being made here in aircraft construction. The rivalry of other nations in this respect, especially that of Germany and Italy, is keen, and it is well to know that Britain is able to hold her own in the race. The congratulatory message which the Secretary for Air, Sir Kingsley Wood, sent to the Squadron-Leader on the occasion was well deserved.

REMARQUE MAY GO SWISS.

VICTIM OF NAZI RULE.

LONDON, Saturday.

Herr Erich Remarque, the famous author, who has just been deprived of his German nationality, will probably become a Swiss citizen in the near future. He has residential qualifications in Switzerland, having lived for the past five years on his own estate on Lake Maggiore. At present he is staying in the country near Paris working on a play and a new book. The latter will have no relation to his earlier works on the war and its consequences. His novel has a love theme and a modern setting. The play is a comedy, which he started to write over a year ago. He hopes to have it ready for production next season. Remarque, who still draws a very comfortable income from royalties and films of his three books, has given up hope of having restored to him any of his property or money in Germany, which has been seized by the Nazis. His main hobby is collecting modern French paintings and Oriental carpets. The carpets, among which are many museum pieces, are not hung on the walls, but laid out on the floor. He does not mind his six dogs playing on them.—"Peterboro'" in the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post."

AGA KHAN.

Aga Khan, who wants to see United States of Europe, is descended from Mahomet through his daughter Fatima. He is hereditary head of Ismaili, sect of Moslems, who are scattered throughout India, Afghanistan, Persia, Turkistan and Africa. Aga means "Lord," Khan "Supreme Ruler," and title was accorded by general consent to his grandfather in 1845, when he left Persia and settled in Bombay under protection of British Government. His Highness was born in 1877, and succeeded his father, Aga Khan II., in 1885. At his jubilee he was weighed against gold, and resulting £25.125 was used for welfare of his "spiritual children."—"News Chronicle."

THOUGHTS FOR THE TIMES.

THE VOICE OF THE SUN

SOON the sun will be calling once again and the chilly spring that we endured has simply quickened our sense of gratitude for that other world which, although so distant, affects our lives so intimately and brings brightness back to our spirits.

The voice of the sun is the voice of life. Have you ever lain upon your back on some sunlit hill with your face turned to the sky and felt, after a few moments, that the majestic orb was focussing itself upon you specially as though with a kiss of welcome?

What a miracle it is that this circle of fire, whose mere corona is ten thousand leagues of flame, should be so tempered by distance and refraction as to become the gentle encourager of every vital power in man.

IT is difficult to feel that this perfect adjustment of the mightiest force in nature to the needs of the human individual can possibly be other than the work of a mind of exquisite delicacy and beneficence. As Swinburne has written in his poem "Nympholept":

"I lean my face to the heather, and drink the sun,
Whose flamelit odour satiates the flowers; mine eyes
Close, and the goal of delight and of life is one;
No more I crave of earth or her kindred skies.
No more? But the joy that springs from them smiles and flies;
The sweet work wrought of them surely, the good work done,
If the mind and the face of the season be loveless, dies."

The italics are mine, in order to bring out Swinburne's meaning and, since this is a great concession for Swinburne to make, we may note how the poem continues:—

"Thee, therefore, thee would I come to, cleave to, cling,
If haply thy heart be kind and thy gifts be good,
Unknown sweet spirit, whose vesture is soft in spring,
In summer splendid . . ."

The sun, of course, dominates entirely the life of this planet. It is present with us in the life of common day through every season of the year, though changes in the earth's orbit and angle in relation to the sun makes the difference between coolness and heat, winter and spring. Although ninety-three million miles distant, the sun inhabits the simplest things of our life.

It is in the fruits of nature by which our bodies are nourished; it is in the buried coal, whence released it warms our homes, drives our ships and locomotives, and developes the electrical energy upon which our civilisation is depending more and more. Everywhere it is the great encourager of life, the developer of vital forces, the friendliest thing known to man!

You may remember, perhaps, a little trick you used to play on your friends when you were a boy. Sitting in school you would rub a button vigorously up and down on the form and then gently but firmly apply it to the hand of the boy sitting next to you and watch him jump as it burnt him.

You did not perhaps know that you were applying the great orb of day "in that simple experiment," existing as latent energy in button and form and your own movement, and at last his. So close does the sun come to us all!

IT is little wonder, therefore, that men in all ages have worshipped the sun as the lord of life, mistaking the gift for the Giver and the mechanism for the Master. We, too, are called to worship, but with better understanding and with a clearer vision of that supreme Mind and Will of which the sun is but a voice.

True it is, of course, that the untempered sun can create the desert and destroy the very fruits which, in gentler mood, it has produced. Man, however, suffers unnecessarily from this fact, for he has been blessed with a mind to understand and a will with which to co-operate, and need not yield to the ignorance, carelessness or greed which conspire together to put him wrong, not only with the sun but indeed all the forces of nature. If he will he can now make the "wilderness to blossom as the rose" and the "mirage to become a pool."

Let the sun then speak to us its word of life and let us see to it that we bask to the full in its rays this summer time, storing vitality against some future "winter of our discontent." Let Longfellow, as well as Swinburne, plead with us:—

"If thou art worn and hard beset
With sorrows that thou wouldst forget,
If thou wouldst read a lesson, that will keep
Thy heart from fainting and thy soul from sleep,
Go to the woods and hills—no tears
Dim the sweet look that Nature wears."

The voice of the sun is life!

How Many Legs Has a Sheep?—By JOHN BLAKE.

To a deputation of men who came to Abraham Lincoln, asking him to issue a proclamation before the Bill warranting it had been framed, the great Emancipator put this question:—

"How many legs will a sheep have if you call a tail a leg?"

"Five," they all replied.

"You are mistaken," the President said, "for calling a tail leg does not make it one."

The all too human tendency is to prefer wishes to facts. The average man is inclined to believe what he chooses to believe rather than what the facts warrant. It is easy to dramatise what might be or what might have been—but not so easy to give facts the same appeal.

To his dying day Mark Twain cherished the pet idea that he was an excellent man of business despite the fact that the course of his life was strewn with the wrecks of unhappy business ventures.

In cricket, they say, every bowler thinks that he was born a batsman. And in life a great deal of wasted energy can be charged up to the fact that few men are willing to make the kind of distinction Lincoln did when he said "calling a tail a leg won't make it one." Some men spend their lives trying to prove that that very thing can be done. They let themselves in for a tough fight with reality.

"Luck was against me," is the favourite complaint of those who refuse to make that distinction.

"If it had not have been for such an event I would be better off than I am to-day," is another excuse they use in an attempt to explain much wasted effort. They never learned to get over that first step and they go on stumbling whenever it turns up again.

I was sitting in a friend's apartment one day listening to the sounds of a pianist practising next door. There was a false note in one piece. My friend jumped up.

"Good heavens," he exclaimed, "I'll bet you a thousand that is my friend V. I thought he was in Russia" He went next door, and, sure enough, there was his friend whom he had not seen since his Paris days.

• • •

"How did you know it was V?" I asked. "Very simple," my friend replied. "V is a lazy cuss. For the last twenty years he has made the same mistake practising that piece."

Some people remind you of hat lazy pianist. They go on making that same mistake their whole lives. They think that calling a tail a leg makes it one.

And like my friend, you get so that you can pick them out by their refusal to make that distinction. The only way the pianist could have cured himself of making that mistake would have been by stopping and overcoming it the first time he made it.

The Literature of Orangeism is NO SHAM

Thomas Carnduff
Well-known Ulster Author-Playwright

"There is this to be said for the Orange Order—for at least one day of the year it makes Belfast a city of colour and gaiety."

. . . "Few will deny the countless banners which meet the breeze . . . speak of a search after beauty."

A few days ago a writer in one of the Dublin newspapers made the following statement: ". . . If 'Orangeism' could ever achieve a literature, a culture, a background, it would justify itself as a reality; but in literature it has to confess itself a built-up sham."

Rather a severe criticism of an organisation which has flourished in the North for the best part of a century and a half. Yet, if it were true, few would deny that such a society had far outlived its usefulness. A movement which adds to a people's history, but not to their progress, rarely leaves much more than a memory to be revered, and history without perpetuation passes into oblivion as generations march on to their ultimate destiny. If Orangeism is a sham then it will die as other movements have died, which hindered rather than inspired a people's progress.

I AM not dealing with Orangeism as a religious or political movement. We all hold varied opinions regarding its usefulness in those spheres. It is the effect an organisation has on the everyday lives of the people rather than on their political or religious opinions, which moulds character and industry. And literature, drama, and art are essential to a people's progress.

The Orange movement began with the people; it has remained with the people. Probably, that is why its literature has never attained any brilliance. The only member of the society to attain the rank of novelist was the late William Johnston, of Ballykilbeg. This gentleman also published an anthology of Orange songs.

Robert Young, a member of the society, published a volume of verse, "The Orange Minstrel," in 1832. The most popular Orange poet is probably Colonel William Blacker, of County Armagh, born in 1774. He was the author of three volumes.

DIGBY P. Starkey, a Trinity College man, who published several volumes during the '50's, was the author of many Orange poems. Rev. John Graham, a County Longford man, was another poet of the society. "Leamh Dhearg" (Red Hand) published a volume of "Orange Songs and Ballads" in Lisburn about 1850. William Archer, a Dublin Orangeman, composed "Orange Melodies" in 1869.

Besides these there are a multitude of songs and ballads, whose authors cannot be traced. A majority of these poems record incidents which occurred at different periods of Ireland's history, and for this reason, if for no other, they should be worth retaining.

The Orangeman has never received the slightest recognition for his artistic expression during the July celebrations. Yet few will deny those countless banners which meet the breeze on the Twelfth morning speak of a search after beauty.

Often I feel somewhat relieved when I realise that I was born in Sandy Row, where one is not supposed to develop even an elementary knowledge of art, rather than in a more fashionable district where artistic ideals are ordinary topics.

As a boy I loved colour. The Orange arches I helped to erect every July anniversary were more than mere religious emblems. There were, and are still, the symbol of artistry in the people. This taste for colour, often crude, I admit, but honest, has yet to be diverted into channels which would create amongst our people an understanding of true art. There is this to be said for the Orange society, for at least one day in the year, it makes Belfast a city of colour and gaiety!

MOST of the local bands which compete in the annual musical festivals have been originally recruited from various Orange lodges. And who will say they have failed to bring credit and honour to their districts!

It is in the sphere of drama that Orangeism has allowed itself to be misrepresented with characterisations which are neither creditable nor true to life. The Orangeman on the Ulster stage is generally depicted as a cheap tavern knight, a braggart, with an aptitude for beating a big drum instead of a big opponent. He and his fellow countryman, the Ulster "Servant Man," generally supply the comic position in an Ulster play.

Even Sean O'Casey's Orangeman in "The Shadow of a Gunman" represents the half-drunken, bragging, hide-under-the-table-when-the-row-begins type. And O'Casey is the greatest Irish playwright of to-day. But he hasn't met a great number of Orangemen.

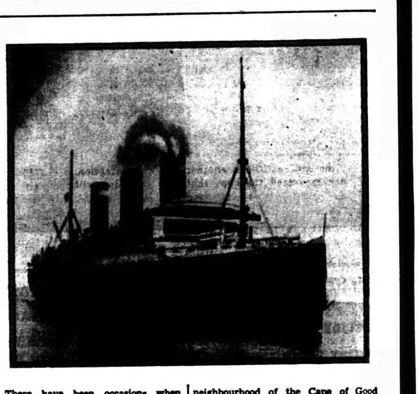
THIS is not a defence of Orangeism, but a study of its artistic possibilities rather than its religious or political influence. An organisation which merely believes in defending religious principles is of little value to the community if it does not also take its share as citizens in the social and progressive advancement of the people.

Art and literature are as important as religion in building up the character of a people. Orangeism would be wise to encourage its members to aspire higher than banners and processions, so that history will record its usefulness as well as its purpose in life.

Did a Submarine Volcano Cause the Atlantic's Latest Riddle?



. . . The Leviathan . . . once struck by a wave 130 feet above the water line. . .

AT the recent Board of Trade inquiry into the latest riddle of the Atlantic, the disappearance of the British ship Anglo-Australian, the possibility of the ship having been suddenly overwhelmed by a wave thrown up from volcanic upheaval in the bed of the ocean was not ruled out.

From time to time submarine volcanoes have erupted, causing terrific waves, often referred to erroneously as "tidal," which have done great damage to ships and submarine telegraph cables. The possibility that a number of unsolved mysteries of the sea can be laid to the charge of submarine upheavals cannot be overlooked.

IN the Pacific Ocean a number of islands have been brought into being by volcanic action; shipmasters have actually witnessed the birth of an island, vast quantities of silt and rock being thrown up in the midst of clouds of steam from below the sea. There are islands which make periodic appearances, rising to a height of, perhaps, 15 feet above sea-level and remaining thus for some months, and then vanishing again.

From time to time volcanic action under the sea and submarine earthquakes have caused alarming experiences both at sea and on neighbouring shores.

Certain islands of the Mediterranean are volcanic in origin, and on one occasion a strange phenomenon was encountered by a British ship in the neighbourhood of the island of Pantellaria, which has recently earned the name of "Italy's Gibraltar." Between this island and Sicily lies Graham's Shoal, which for two weeks was once an island.

In June, 1831, Captain Swinburne was passing over the spot and felt several shocks beneath the ship. On the 19th of the following July the crater of a volcano appeared above the sea, emitting steam and ashes. At the end of August the new island was about 3,000 feet in circumference. In December it disappeared and there are now about 10 fathoms of water over the spot.

IN 1891 a vast "tidal wave" was experienced on the coast of Portugal, and later it was learnt that this was due to an immense disturbance near Madeira, several telegraph cables being broken.

A very strange event took place in 1888. Three cables connecting Australia with the rest of the world became silent at the same moment. Cut off from the outside world in this way, the Australian authorities believed that the cables had been cut through the action of an enemy; the naval and military reserves were called out to repel invasion. Later, however, it was learnt that gigantic disturbances of the sea-bed, due either to a volcano or earthquake, had caused the severance of the cables.

MORE recently, in 1929, one of the greatest submarine disturbances ever recorded took place in the North Atlantic, and most of the cables between Europe and the United States were cut. At the same time violent storms accompanied by snow and sleet swept the sea, and when the cable-repair ships were sent off in greater numbers than ever before, owing to the seriousness of the interruption of communications, it was discovered that the cables had in most cases been covered by thousands of tons of silt and Primeval ooze flung up from the bottom of the ocean.

There have been occasions when waves of phenomenal size have suddenly made their appearance without any observable cause. When the Antinoe sank in mid-Atlantic after heroic rescues by the President Roosevelt, the second officer reported that during the violent storm which had crippled the Antinoe, he had witnessed a dramatic event. There rose up out of the sea a great wave not following the ordinary run of its fellows. It struck the ship amidships, falling on her with terrific force.

Solitary waves of gigantic size have done damage to the greatest ships. The Leviathan was once struck by a wave 130 feet above the water-line, and in the neighbourhood of the Cape of Good Hope solitary waves of this character have not infrequently been observed.

It is conjectured that some very strange disaster must have befallen the Anglo-Australian, for she was fitted with wireless, and in all ordinary circumstances of mishap, even the most serious, there is generally time for some sort of signal to be sent out. Whatever disaster overtook this ship, it must have been both great and of alarming suddenness, since not a word of the ship's being in peril or about to sink was sent out over the air.

Coiner of Telling Phrases. Where Labour M.P. Shines.

LONDON, Saturday.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, M.P.

GREAT indeed is the power given by the capacity for framing a telling phrase. Mr. Arthur Greenwood, the Labour M.P., has it in excelsis. He is himself rather modest about his gift, but I am told that there are people who think him "greater than Plimsoll."

He may be. The point is that he has earned this reputation by this telling description of "ill-found" ships as "slums of the sea."

When it was coined the phrase excited the keenest indignation amongst shipowners, but I see now that a political opponent, Lady Astor, has adopted it as her own.

Hard Bargaining.

THERE has been hard bargaining at the Australia trade negotiations. This was very obvious by the speeches at the luncheon of the British Council of the Australian Association of British Manufacturers, but it was good to see that both sides are on the best of terms.

I came to the conclusion that Australia is fighting hard, for Mr. R. G. Menzies, the Commonwealth Attorney-General, expressed his view that the three representing Great Britain at the talks were brought up in a rather Puritanical atmosphere, they had all been taught to say "No" quite early.

Lord Stanley, the recently appointed Dominions Secretary, is, quite frankly, exceedingly interested in his first big job for his Department, for he dropped the hint that he would very much like to visit Australia to establish the so-much-desired personal contact—"If the Prime Minister and a General Election are kind enough to keep me in my present position."

The permanent staff of any Department in Whitehall are usually careful not to discuss their chief, but the Dominions officials make no secret of the fact, they consider Lord Stanley "good."

An Air Anniversary.

THIS week-end a small group of British pilots will celebrate the 21st anniversary of this country's first successful system of flying instructions. This system, with minor modifications, is still in use in the R.A.F.

The "Gosport system," as it was called, was first introduced in July, 1917, by Major R. Smith-Barry at Gosport Aerodrome (Hants). Even to-day the description "Gosport trained" is one of the highest qualifications a pilot can have.

Briefly, the system amounted to this: (1) Pilots at Gosport were encouraged to spend as much time in the air as possible, so long as they spent it profitably; (2) Spending their time profitably meant that it didn't matter how they flew their machine so long as they were trying something new.

And Smith-Barry's merry men did try something new. There were times when the air above Gosport was full of tumbling machines in all kinds of strange attitudes. New and strange aerobatic manœuvres were discovered that have since passed into the military manuals of the world's air forces.

And when they went overseas the Gosport trained men proved their worth in combat in a way which did much to establish the Allies' air supremacy of late 1918.

Patience Rewarded.

VISITORS to the Children's Zoo in the grounds of the Regent's Park Zoological gardens next week will see the latest addition, Sheila, a baby elephant, which arrived at the Zoo a few weeks ago, a gift from the United Provinces Forest Department. Accompanying the baby elephant was a letter from the Forest Officer which explained how much trouble and patience had been required to ship Sheila to this country.

Children who pay a visit to this baby will gaze upon an elephant only a year old, who from birth has been in at the death of numerous game birds, and larger game, including a leopard. She has been charged by a very angry tiger and sought refuge under the mother's stomach.

These frequent mother and daughter expeditions into the jungle incidentally formed the most trying part of her career as far as her keepers were concerned, for the task of separating mother and daughter when it was time for Sheila to come to England was anything but easy.

At first even the first five minutes apart was painful to them both, but gradually they got used to separation although by their violent squealings and trumpetings mother and calf could hear each other calling at a good two miles range.

Transport Union.

NOT for the first time has the National Union of Railwaymen sought to organise the entire transport workers' organisations of this country. For years it has striven to bring about the fusion of the three railway unions, but has never been able to overcome the prejudices, or the unwillingness of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, who still retain the majority of the key men of the railway locomotive world.

Judging from suggestions made at the N.U.R. Conference this week, another attempt is, however, to be made in this direction. There seems little doubt that if the Associated Society could be won over the Railway Clerks would join up, and one union for all railway men would be the first step to achieving combination with the Transport and General Workers and kindred organisations.

Unless, however, a miracle takes place, nothing of the kind is likely to happen for a long while. The old National Federation, out of which the Transport and General Workers developed, might have secured it, but personal interest and inter-union jealousy circumvented the scheme.

Mr. Other's Brother.

WHEN the second round of the Open Championship was completed at Sandwich 37 players had qualified for the last two rounds. The official list of the starting times for Friday's third round showed nineteen pairs.

This didn't make sense, but on examination of the list I saw that one of the players was "A. M. Arker." This was a new one to me, but I learn that "A. M. Arker," the golfer, is a half-brother of "A. N. Other," the cricketer.

The use of cyphers to represent unknown names forms an interesting subject. I can only think of one other example off-hand—Private Thomas Atkins, the official name used by the War Office to represent any soldier.

Thus, the printed official example of how a soldier on active service should make out his will (contained in every Tommy's pay book) reads, if I remember rightly, "I, Private Thomas Atkins, leave all I possess to my mother, Sarah Ann Atkins . . . ."

The Tell-Tale Marks.

LIPSTICK is held by some to be a pernicious thing, and it has been condemned by the doctors on hygienic grounds. From the earliest times there have been condemnations of rouge—or its earlier equivalents.

But it would appear that these things have one advantage. They come off, and on the evidence afforded by them a man has been fined for not having proper control of his car. There was an "attractive young thing" in the car with him, and it has been held that he thought more of her than of guiding the car.

A Street Lover.

MR. John van Druten has confessed that his plays are conceived while walking the streets of London. The romantic glen, the shaded valley have no attraction for him as far as inspiration is concerned. Yet his plays are delicate stuff, dealing with phases of human life which are dramas for all of us, but which we cannot translate into words and actions the way he does.

Van Druten will always be remembered for "Young Woodley," and the censor gave him a fine advertisement by banning it. However, New York did not feel so squeamish and the dramatist's name was made. America took a quick liking to van Druten, whose name suggests an old Dutch family connection.

It is a wrong suggestion, however, for he was born in London some thirty-six years ago, and his education was here also. He actually became a solicitor at the age of twenty-one, and then obtained an appointment as lecturer in English to the University College of Wales, Aberystwyth, all of which sounds strange training for a dramatist. But there is no doubt about his "touch."

Australia in Whitehall. The Trade Negotiations.

A Promising Young Man.

MR. R. H. Cross is making a great reputation for himself in the House of Commons. Since he graduated from his inconspicuous position in his Majesty's household to a departmental position, he has only made three or four speeches, but every one of them has been good.

The recognition of his abilities is well enough illustrated by the suggestion that if there were not so many people who were senior to him he might be England's Prime Minister when Mr. Chamberlain "lets go." Of course Mr. Cross has a good many seniors. He is only 42.

PRIVILEGE DEBATE

POLITICAL "MANŒUVRES" AND MR. BELISHA

NEXT WEEK IN PARLIAMENT

SIR JOHN REITH'S SUCCESSOR

Careful plans have been laid by the Opposition for Monday's debate at Westminster on the report of the Committee of Privileges.

MR. HORE-BELISHA, MINISTER FOR WAR, WILL BE THE OBJECT OF SOME ADROIT "MANŒUVRES" IN THE HOPE OF EXTRACTING FROM HIM THE INSIDE STORY OF WHAT OCCURRED (WRITES THE PRESS ASSOCIATION LOBBY CORRESPONDENT).

WHETHER HE WILL JOIN THE "SILENT SERVICE" FOR THE NIGHT AND SAY NOTHING, OR WHETHER HE WILL ALLOW HIMSELF TO BE DRAWN REMAINS TO BE SEEN.

WHAT COMMITTEE FOUND.

This is the situation the Committee of Privileges found—That in asking Mr. Duncan Sandys to give evidence as to how he obtained certain secret information the Military Court of Inquiry committed a breach of privilege.

MR. HORE-BELISHA

It was a "breach" because Parliament had decided to deal with the question of an M.P.'s position in relation to secret knowledge, and the Military Court, therefore, had no right to go "above the head" of the House. The Military Court should have waited until it was decided whether Mr. Sandys could or could not be asked to disclose his sources of information.

It will be an entertaining debate, but the motion, to be moved by the Prime Minister, that the report of the Committee of Privileges be agreed to, will in the end be carried.

"CURFEW" PROTEST.

Precisely when "the end" will be is another bone of contention. The Government have expressed the hope that the discussion will conclude by 6-30 p.m., so that further progress can be made with the Finance Bill.

LABOUR MEMBERS SAY THEY CANNOT BE TIED DOWN BY ANY "CURFEW" OF THIS SORT, AND THAT THE "PRIVILEGES" DISCUSSION MAY GO ON MUCH LATER.

There will be no wide-ranging debate on the merits or otherwise of the Official Secrets Act, as this and other matters are now being dealt with by the Select Committee, which has another busy week ahead.

SURPRISE ITEM EXPECTED.

The name of the man who will succeed Sir John Reith as Director-General of the B.B.C. will probably be announced on Wednesday. It will surprise many of the prophets.

In the privileges debate it will be argued by Mr. Dingle Foot, Mr. Herbert Morrison, Dr. Hugh Dalton and others that Mr. Hore-Belisha, as head of the Army, is responsible to the House for the setting up of the Military Court.

That Court committed a breach of privilege in asking Mr. Sandys to divulge certain things, and surely, therefore, it will be said, Mr. Hore-Belisha should give an explanation of how such "a blunder" occurred.

Questions will be asked. Did Mr. Hore-Belisha do anything to protect the military men from committing the breach? Did he tell them that, although they might regard Mr. Sandys simply as a Territorial officer, yet—because he is an M.P. too—the Commons might resent any action which might seem not to show sufficient respect for a member of the House? And so on. Comments will also be made on the question whether M.P.'s should in the circumstances, belong to the Territorials or similar forces. Sir John Simon will wind up.

"NEGLECTED ACRES."

Echoes of another recent storm will be heard on Wednesday when agriculture comes up on the Ministry's vote.

Mr. Lloyd George, who opens, will be handling a favourite theme. He may demand a full explanation of the Prime Minister's now famous Kettering speech, which some construed as taking the restrictive view of British agriculture. Already Mr. Chamberlain has explained that the Government are doing everything to encourage the full normal development of agricultural production.

Farming on much more scientific lines than at present will be urged by Mr. Lloyd George. He will describe some of the research carried out by Professor R. G. Stapledon at the University of Wales at Aberystwyth.

It is Professor Stapledon's view that the 16,000,000 acres of land in England and Wales are in more or less neglected condition when they could be used for food production. Mr. Lloyd George may deal with this when considering supplies in possible war.

He will demand much greater production. Mr. Tom Williams speaks for [illegible].

Lord Addison in the House of Lords [illegible] on Tuesday call attention to the [illegible] er's Kettering speech, and "its [illegible] of restricting the full and proper [illegible] British land for food production."

HOLIDAYS WITH PAY.

[illegible] Ernest Brown's Holidays with Pay [illegible] be warmly welcomed by all when it comes up for second [illegible] on Thursday. Mr. Clynes and [illegible] Roberts will pat it on the back [illegible] ur, and Mr. Geoffrey Mander, [illegible] ng other things, has a 40-hour [illegible] his own workers, and Mr. [illegible] White will give it a Liberal [illegible]. The Bill will be through by [illegible] of the month.

[illegible] easure empowers Trade Boards [illegible] ultural Wages Committees to [illegible] d holidays, and it will benefit [illegible] 000 people.

[illegible] are difficult to arrive at but [illegible] lated that about 7,000,000 [illegible] have paid holidays, but that [illegible] er will have grown to 18,000,000 [illegible] years' time, when general legislation may be introduced making paid holidays compulsory.

Structures and alterations made as a precaution against air raid damage will be exempted from rating by the Rating and Valuation (Air Raid Works) Bill, which comes up for second reading. It is a complement to the provision in the Finance Bill, which exempts such works from income tax.

Also on Thursday will be second reading of the Bill to appoint three new judges.

COAST PROTECTION.

Seaside M.P.'s, who have a Committee of which Mr. Stanley Holmes is chairman, and Mr. Roland Robinson, secretary, will meet during the week to discuss a new Bill for the protection of the coast. Such problems as arise when people dig away sand and gravel and so destroy the coastal defences when high tides come, will be faced in the Bill, which Mr. Holmes may ultimately introduce.

No time is being lost by the Committee in attending to the dangers which arose during the winter at Hornsey and elsewhere.

The War Minister will be able to pass on to an Under Secretary, or other deputy, certain debated work necessary in acquiring or disposing of War Department property when a small Bill, to be discussed on Tuesday, becomes law.

The committee stage of the Anglo-Turkish Agreement Bill and the Milk (Extension and Amendment) Bill will also be taken, as will the Lords Amendments to the Road Haulage Wages Bill.

Col. H. L. Nathan, chairman of the committee which is making known the work of the Territorials, will on Tuesday night give a dinner at the House to General Liardet with a view to discussing recruiting problems. Lord Nuffield is a member of this committee, which is exercising much ingenuity in making the public aware of the valuable work that is going on.

LAST OF FINANCE BILL.

On Friday the last will be heard, it is hoped, of the Finance Bill. Mr. Benson and Mr. Barnes speak for Labour, and Mr. Graham White and Major Lloyd George for the Liberals.

Lord Newton, in the Lords on Wednesday, will ask the Government whether there were any constitutional objections to continuing the judicial business of the House in one of the committee rooms, thereby enabling the House to meet at an earlier hour for legislative business and whether he will appoint a committee to consider the matter.

Further progress will be made during the week by their lordships with the Bacon Industry Bill, Essential Commodities Reserves Bill, Green Belt (London and Home Counties) Bill, Hire Purchase Bill, Fire Brigades Bill, Herring Industry Bill and others.

CRANWELL TO EGYPT

R.A.F. RECORD NON-STOP FORMATION FLIGHT.

4,300 MILES WERE COVERED.

RADIO LINKS FOUR 'PLANES.

A formation of four Vickers Wellesley aircraft of the R.A.F. long range development unit successfully accomplished yesterday a non-stop development flight of 4,300 miles.

This is the longest non-stop flight ever accomplished by an organised unit of the R.A.F.

The four 'planes left Cranwell Aerodrome, Lincolnshire, at 4-15 a.m. on Thursday, and landed at Ismailia, Egypt, at 12 10 p.m. yesterday after flying non-stop to a point between Koweit and Bahrein, on the Persian Gulf, where, according to plan, they turned westwards to their destination at Ismailia.

The machines flew at an average height of 10,000 feet and the weather was reported to have been "good on the whole and as forecast." No technical difficulties were encountered throughout the flight.

BY GREAT CIRCLE ROUTE.

The machines reported their progress regularly by wireless and were also in regular communication with each other. They flew on the great circle route which passes over Belgium, near Brussels, Western Germany, North-East Italy, the western side of Yugo-Slavia, Albania, Greece, near Athens, and thence to Shaibah (Iraq), turning west to Ismailia.

The flight, which was organised under the direction of Wing-Commander C. R. Gayford, was commanded by Squadron-Leader R. Kellett.

L2639—Flight-Lieutenant H. A. V. Hogan (pilot), Pilot-Officer R. G. Musson (navigator), Flight-Sergeant T. D. Dixon (wireless operator-mechanic).

L2680—Flight-Lieutenant A. N. Combe (pilot), Flight-Lieutenant B. K. Burnett (navigator), Sergeant H. B. Gray (wireless operator-mechanic).

L2681—Flight-Lieutenant P. H. Dunn (pilot), Flight-Lieutenant A. T. D. Sanders (navigator), Sergeant B. N. Phillips (wireless operator-mechanic).

TECHNIQUE DEVELOPMENT.

This development flight was organised in accordance with the policy announced towards the end of last year for the long range development unit which has been established with Wellesley aircraft for the investigation and development of technique and long range flying in relation both to the operational purpose and to the design of aeroplanes.

A large number of flights of considerable duration and distance have taken place in the interval around Great Britain.

The four aircraft will remain at Ismailia for a few weeks, and return to England later in the year.

It is intended to arrange for further experimental flights of this nature also along the England-Australia route.

This is the longest non-stop formation flight ever made.

The record for the longest non-stop flight by a single 'plane, however, was set up by the Russian airmen, Gromoff, Yumashev, and Danilin, who flew from Moscow to California over the North Pole, a distance of 6,700 miles, in July last year.

AIR MINISTER'S TRIBUTE.

The text of Sir Kingsley's message was:—

"I am delighted that you have succeeded in achieving longest non-stop flight by formation. Such a flight carried out without a hitch is a striking proof of good organisation, and of the quality of both aircraft and crews. Please convey my personal congratulations to all concerned."

HUGE R.A.F. BASE IN CANADA.

NEW YORK PAPER'S REPORT.

£200 MILLION EXPENDITURE.

NEW YORK, Saturday. — A huge R.A.F. supply and training base may be established in Canada, according to the New York "Herald-Tribune" to-day.

It has been disclosed, says the paper, that the British Air Mission, in its recent visit to the United States, tried to induce American aircraft manufacturers to establish a Canadian factory on the basis of a guaranteed purchase of a thousand 'planes.

The plan would embrace not only a large aircraft factory, but also an aerodrome and training field to train pilots to man 5,000 R.A.F. planes, which would be based permanently in Canada.

The idea is said to have advanced so far in discussion in diplomatic and military circles that an expenditure of £200,000,000 by the British Government is regarded as possible.

The American manufacturers are said to have taken somewhat coldly the suggested guaranteed purchase of 1,000 'planes, and to have replied that they would only erect such a factory on the basis of a recurring order.

It has, therefore, been suggested by Canada, the paper declares, that the British Government should place orders for military 'planes with Curtiss Wright, Ltd., of Canada. In return, Canada would agree to buy British goods equivalent to the value of the contracts placed.—Reuter.

GERMAN AIRMEN'S FEAT.

CLAIM NEW WORLD RECORD.

Two German airmen, Herr Leuber and Herr Walter, claim to have set up a new world speed record for light aeroplanes yesterday by covering a distance of 621 miles at a speed of 135.8 miles per hour.

The record was achieved in a two-seater Arado machine equipped with a 100 horse-power Hirth engine.

THE DOG REPLIED.

BARK THAT "CORRECTED" MASTER.

A small wire-haired fox terrier helped its master to answer questions in proceedings concerning itself at Thames Police Court, London, yesterday.

James Humm (55), was bound over for receiving the dog, and William Baker (45) was fined 40s on a similar charge.

When Mr. David Jones, the owner, gave evidence, the clerk said to him: "Is this the dog?" there came a bark from the back of the court where the dog was in the custody of a police officer.

The Magistrate (Mr. John Harris)—The answer is apparently "Yes."

The Clerk—What is the value of the dog?

There was another bark, and Mr. Jones made an indistinct reply.

Mr. Harris—Did you say only £1?

Another bark.

"No, £5," said Mr. Jones.

Mr. Harris—When did you last see the dog?

Mr. Jones—Last Saturday week.

Again the dog barked.

Mr. Jones—No, I'm sorry, it was last Saturday.

Mr. Harris remarked: "I always regard the theft of a man's dog as a particularly mean one, for a man gets attached to a dog, or his children do, and if the dog is stolen a lot of grief is caused."

EIRE INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL BILL.

'BEST DAY'S WORK EVER'

MR. DILLON AND DYNAMITE.

MINISTER WOULD BE PLEASED IF—

"It would be the best day's work the Government ever did if they blew up the whole 'shooting-match' to blazes," said Mr. Dillon (U.I.P., Monaghan), speaking on the second stage of the Industrial Alcohol Bill in the Dail, Dublin. He added that if the Government asked for the price of six cwt. of dynamite they would have the unanimous support of the House.

Mr. Dillon said his party opposed the whole experiment as a gross waste of time and gross foolishness, that must eventually end in a smash, in which a great deal of money would be lost, and a great deal of damage done. The Bill, however, had been before the country, and his party did not propose to divide the House on the question now.

"We are convinced," he said, "that the whole thing is an economic cod, and we are perfectly convinced that the Minister knows it as well as we do. He is engaged in a face-saving operation. The sensible thing to do is to end the nonsense, close up the alcohol factories, sell the machinery as scrap, and get out as quickly as possible. That is the decent and courageous thing for the Minister to do."

Mr. P. Cogan (Independent Farmer, Wicklow) urged the Minister to keep in mind that there might be alternative methods of disposing of their surplus potato crops. In the national interest it would be desirable to increase the acreage under potatoes.

Mr. Lemass said the Government was fully justified in the circumstances of 1934, when they decided on that development, and they were fully justified in maintaining it to-day, even if the circumstances now existing were very different from 1934. The factories benefited the areas in which they had been erected by making available a mixture of industrial alcohol and benzol, which was a high-grade motor-fuel, sold in other countries in competition with pure petrol. Countries must plan for cases of emergency.

Mr. Dillon—Buy the dynamite.

Mr. Lemass—If the Deputy will undertake to sit on top of one of the buildings while the match is applied, I will gladly do so.

The Bill passed, and the Dail adjourned.

SHOCK FOR POLES.

WARSAW PROTEST EXPECTED.

An official protest is expected to be made by Poland against the sudden appearance of the German Army flag over the barracks of the Danzig police and militarised Nazi organisations yesterday.

Considerable astonishment was caused by the appearance of the flag.

The Treaty of Versailles expressly forbids Danzig to possess an army, and does not allow any military flags or signs in the territory of the free city.

The appearance of the German flag is denounced in the Polish Press as German provocation.

The Polish Commissioner-General in Danzig is expected to lodge an official protest and demand the removal of the flag.—Central News.

'TREASON TO NATION'

THE SCHUSCHNIGG TRIAL.

STATEMENT IN SEPTEMBER.

It is expected in Nazi circles that when the party's congress is held at Nuremberg in September an announcement regarding the future of Dr. Schuschnigg will be made, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Berlin correspondent. The ex-Chancellor of Austria, together with some of his more prominent associates, will probably be tried on charges of "treason to the nation."

It is not unlikely that Herr Hitler will take the opportunity of announcing the erection of a national monument to the two National Socialists, Holzweber and Pluan Yetta, executed in Austria for the murder of Dr. Dollfuss. Both men are now regarded as "martyrs."

The congress, the tenth of its kind, is to be held from September 5 to September 12. Apart from party members, 10,000 men of the former Austrian Army will take part, together with large detachments of the German Army.

PASTOR NIEMOELLER WELL.

Reports published that Pastor Martin Niemoeller, leader of the Confessional Movement within the German Evangelical Church, is seriously ill in a concentration camp are semi-officially denied. His health is stated to be normal.

HITLER AT GERMAN ART FESTIVAL.

LAVISH SPLENDOUR

IN THREE-DAYS' PROGRAMME.

Herr Hitler has arrived in Munich from Berchtesgaden to attend the three-days' German Art Festival (states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent). The festivities will begin officially on Sunday, when Herr Hitler will open an art exhibition in the House of German Art.

Money has not been spared to make this year's festival a success. More than £83,000 has been expended on street decorations alone.

The cost of the three days' programme of entertainments, all arranged on a scale of lavish splendour, is estimated to exceed £416,000.

It includes eight gala opera and theatre performances, 12 symphony orchestras for outdoor concerts, and two choral concerts, three exhibitions of ballet and folk-dancing, and a two-mile "historic art procession" through the streets of Munich on Sunday morning. The last-named is to symbolise 2,000 years of German art.

"LEADS WORLD IN CREATIVE ART."

Besides, there will be street illuminations at night. Every tenant and householder in Munich has had to provide wax tapers and evergreens for window decoration. The climax of the festivities will be reached on Sunday night with a series of flower carnivals and outdoor dancing in the Munich parks.

Herr Wagner, Bavarian Nazi District leader, said yesterday that the Munich art festival is intended to demonstrate that the Germany of the Third Reich leads the world in all forms of creative art.

Another reason for the festival, however, is the hope that it will bring foreign tourists to Munich. At the hotels and tourist agencies it was, however, admitted yesterday that the number of foreigners in Munich for this week-end was disappointingly small.

GERMAN TRADE WITH TURKEY.

GIBE AT BRITISH LOAN.

RIVALRY WITH FRANCE-BRITAIN.

BERLIN, Friday.—The presence in Berlin of the Secretary-General of the Turkish Foreign Office, M. Menemencioglu, at the head of a trade delegation has again aroused interest in what is regarded here as the approaching rivalry of Great Britain and France with Germany in South-Eastern Europe, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

The "Berliner Tageblatt" this evening refers in the course of a leading article to "the curious fact that England and France had suddenly come to the conclusion that something must be done about the South-Eastern European States.

"It began in the Near East, when England unexpectedly gave Turkey credit for £16,000,000 to be devoted for the major part to rearmament.

"The credit was a political one, given on the principle of helping Britain's friends, and its financial weakness has been already criticised by the City. England only buys half as much from Turkey as she sends there, and the credit was more in the nature of an assistance given to British trade, which since the beginning of the year shows every sign of decline."

The writer ends with the argument that what the Balkan countries and Turkey need is not political credit but regular markets. There is no doubt that these arguments were brought forward yesterday in the course of the conversation between Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, and M. Menemencioglu.

The Vice-Chancellor and Mrs. Ogilvie deputised for the Chancellor and the Marchioness of Londonderry at the reception in Queen's University on Friday. About 600 guests accepted invitations and were received in the Great Hall. Here long tables were laid out with refreshments, and the beautiful flowers were from Mountstewart gardens. The entertainment was excellently organised by Dr. R. H. Hunter.

Mrs. Ogilvie was wearing a shady hat of black with a two-piece suit of powder-blue wool, with a wool lace coat, and a silver fox fur.

The band of the R.U.C., under Mr. G. Ferguson, D.I., played a varied programme of music.

ALLEGED DOPING OF GREYHOUNDS.

MANCHESTER ASSIZES HEARING.

Mrs. Nelly Fehilly (45), of Ansdell Road, Rochdale, and Fred Boothyate (32), window cleaner, Harbour Lane, Milnrow, near Rochdale, pleaded not guilty to conspiring to administer strychnine to greyhounds.

On Thursday Edmund Redford (28), blacksmith, of Holroyd Street, Rochdale, pleaded guilty to conspiring to administer strychnine to greyhounds and to corruptly giving money to two employes of the Rochdale Athletic Stadium to administer strychnine. It was alleged by the prosecution that strychnine pills were administered in sweetmeats to all the dogs except one in a certain race, and that the defendants were then in a position to bet on the dog which had not been treated.

DEFENDANTS' DENIALS.

Yesterday Mrs. Fehilly in evidence said that she had never agreed with Redford or anyone else to join in a conspiracy for doping dogs.

She told Boothyate she had an opportunity of getting kennel information as to likely winners. She did not tell him that the dogs had been interfered with.

Answering Mr. A. E. Jalland (for Boothyate) she said that Redford indicated that he was in a position to be given inside information about dogs on the Rochdale track.

The Judge—Was that information as to which dogs had been doped?

Witness—Yes.

Boothyate, in evidence, said that he received tips for greyhound races from Mrs. Fehilly when he went to her house to clean windows. He did not know that the dogs were being tampered with. He had never made any agreement with anyone with regard to interfering with dogs.

Answering Mr. Percy Butlin (prosecuting) he said that he was slightly connected with the Animal Welfare Society.

Redford, Fehilly and Boothyate were each sentenced to three months' hard labour

PAINTERS' HUGE TASK.

BEAUTIFYING NEW MAURETANIA.

An army of painters is now busily engaged in giving the new 33,000-ton Cunard-White Star liner Mauretania her first beauty treatment at Birkenhead in preparation for the launch in three weeks' time. It will entail the use of nearly 150 tons of paint.

So rapid has been the progress of construction that the Mauretania will be ready for taking the water three days in advance of her launching date.

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER

BUYING A COUNTRY HOME.

Barnwell Castle, Northamptonshire, is being bought by the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester as a country home. Negotiations for the sale are nearing completion.

The castle was formerly the property of the Duchess's father, the Duke of Buccleuch. Later it belonged to Major Colin Cooper, joint managing director of the International Tea Co., who died in Kenya last March.

About six miles distant is Boughton House, the seat of the Duchess of Gloucester's brother, the Duke of Buccleuch.

AIRPORTS IN EIRE.

COSTING OVER MILLION.

MR. LEMASS GIVES DETAILS.

TRANSATLANTIC SERVICE BASE.

The Eire Government is spending £1,165,000 this year on the provision of airports and a base for Transatlantic flights.

This was announced by Mr. Sean Lemass (Minister for Industry and Commerce) in the Dail yesterday, when the vote on Transport and Meteorological Services came before the House.

The total cost of the Shannon airport scheme will be £805,000, made up of £535,000 for the land aerodrome at Rhynanna and £270,000 for the partial development of a flying boat base at Foynes.

In addition £360,000 is to be spent on the new Dublin airport at Collinstown, which will be the chief commercial airport of Eire.

Moving the vote, Mr. Lemass said the question of a flying boat base on the Shannon was reconsidered and in the light of opinion available it was decided to proceed with a scheme of partial development. The operation of experimental flights from Dublin and the Shannon might require the provision of aerodrome staff, and a sum for this was included. The Meteorological services consisted of a small headquarters staffed on the Shannon by the Meteorological Office, London, pending the appointment of trained Irish personnel, the recruitment of which might proceed this year. The landing field at the Dublin port was completed, and the aerodrome and other buildings should be completed during the present year. Baldonnel would then be no longer used for commercial flying.

Mr. James Dillon (U.I.P. Monaghan) complained of the facilities for passengers on the 'planes from Dublin at Croydon, and said if the British company, with which the Irish company was associated, did not provide better facilities they should come to some arrangement with Imperial Airways whereby Irish passengers could share in their facilities. He would like to know if Imperial Airways paid anything for the use of the Shannon port.

The Minister said the cost of providing the Shannon Airport fell on the country, but the companies that used it would pay the ordinary charges for the services, based on some regular scale.

Mr. Dillon—If the port is used by a foreign Government will they contribute?

Mr. Lemass—It cannot be used by any Government 'planes without permission from the Eire Government. The airport will be run as an ordinary commercial concern.

The Vote was agreed to.

THE RAILWAYS TRIBUNAL.

On the Vote for the Railways Tribunal, Mr. T. Linaghan (U.I.P., Cork N.) said a number of institutions and trustees of orphans who had money invested in the railways had lost their income, and they were entitled to some compensation. Sympathy had been expressed for the workers and those connected with the railways, but nothing had been done for the investors.

Mr. Lemass said that any action taken by the State with regard to railways was to assist the railways and increase their profit-earning capacity. The fact had to be faced that large sums of money invested in the railways had been lost. The railway lines had to be abandoned in some parts of the country, and it would be a big obligation to make the remaining railway system pay dividends not only on the existing lines, but on capital invested in the abandoned lines.

The Vote was passed.

HOLIDAYS WITH PAY BILL.

DOES NOT APPLY TO ULSTER

WILL AFFECT 2,000,000 PEOPLE.

The text of the Holidays with Pay Bill has been published. It is designed to implement that part of the Amulree Committee's report which requires immediate legislation. It does not apply to Ulster.

The case of domestic servants is left over for the moment because the Government has come to the conclusion that they should be dealt with in any general legislation that is needed later, probably in 1940 or 1941.

The Bill affects something under 2,000,000 people whose wages are regulated by Trade Boards, besides agricultural workers and workers engaged in road haulage.

Trade Boards, Agricultural Wages Committees, and Road Haulage Central Wages Boards are given power to direct that workers whose wages they regulate shall be granted holidays with pay. The duration of such holidays has to be related to the period of employment with a particular employer and, in the case of Trade Boards and Agricultural Wages Committees, there is a provision that the holidays granted cannot exceed a maximum of seven days in the year.

For agricultural workers the Agricultural Wages Committees are restrained from directing that more than three days' holiday with pay shall be required to be taken consecutively. Otherwise the times, periods, and circumstances in which holidays may be allowed are left to the discretion of the wage-regulating authority. It has to submit a scheme or schemes to the Minister of Labour, and, if these are approved, they become enforceable in the same way as the findings with regard to minimum wage rates.

In addition, power is given to the Ministry of Labour to assist the administration of voluntary schemes for securing holidays with pay to the workers in particular industries. These provisions are primarily intended to assist employers and men at the docks, in buildings, and possibly in civil engineering, where the employment is intermittent, to arrange that the wage earners should enjoy an annual rest without foregoing their remuneration.

POST FOR BELFAST TEACHER

IN ENNISKILLEN SCHOOL.

Fermanagh Regional Education Committee appointed Miss Irene E. Burns, Belfast as domestic economy teacher in the Enniskillen Collegiate School, by eight votes to four for Miss Julia Rea, Inch, Downpatrick.

R.A.F. OFFICER SENTENCED.

MONTH'S HARD LABOUR IN CAR CASE.

Sentence of one month's hard labour, with a suspension of his driving licence for two years, was passed at Oxford on Flying Officer Charles Eric Levitt (24), of the R.A.F., Brize Norton, Oxfordshire, on a charge of driving a car while under the influence of drink.

Dr. N. H. H. Longton, assistant police surgeon, said that Levitt was very jocular when he examined him.

"When I asked him to undress in order to examine his chest he refused to dress again until I had played noughts and crosses with him," the doctor added.

Mr. H. W. James, another driver, said that he had stopped dead at the kerbside when Levitt's car crashed into him. A passenger in Mr. James's car broke his nose and received concussion, necessitating several days in hospital.

Mr. Cecil Bartram, for Levitt, denied that his client was responsible for the accident. He had since given up drink.

FOR PEAT FUEL INDUSTRY.

VOTE PASSED IN THE DAIL.

On the vote for peat fuel development in the Dail yesterday the Minister for Industry and Commerce said the peat briquette factory would require a further £30,000, of which £5,000 was needed for new machinery and £25,000 for working capital. Without State assistance the factory could not carry on at present.

Mr. P. Belton (U.I.P.) asked what was the cost of producing a ton of briquettes and the commercial selling price.

The Minister said that was one of the things they were trying to ascertain. The briquettes were sold last year at 30s a ton. The methods employed at the factory were the same as carried out with success in Denmark at a factory inspected by experts from the Eire factory. It was found, however, that the methods employed in Denmark were not successful in Ireland, due to the fact that bogs in Ireland were bigger and deeper and the peat consequently moister. The machinery was now being adapted to deal with the particular character of the Irish bog, and this year would determine the success or otherwise of the venture. The demand for the briquettes turned out by the present factory last year was far in excess of the supply.

COURT ACTION AS SEQUEL.

JUDGE GIVES TIP OF SORTS.

During the hearing of an action in the Civil Court at the West Riding Assizes at Leeds, an East Riding farmer was questioned about firing a sporting gun on the highway, thereby, it was alleged, startling a two-year-old horse ridden by a woman.

Mr. Justice Goddard—What did you discharge your gun for?

The Farmer—At a partridge.

Mr. Justice Goddard—Was it flying?—No, my lord. There were four of them in one of my fields.

Mr. G. H. B. Streatfeild, K.C.—Oh, don't tell us that you fired at a sitting partridge.

The farmer said that as he stopped on the highway the birds rose, and he took a pot-shot at them.

Mr. Justice Goddard—Did you look to see if anyone was about? Any man who discharges firearms on the highway has a duty to people using the highway.

The Farmer—There was no one in sight.

Mr. Justice Goddard—Well, when did you first see the lady on the horse?—After I had fired the gun. She was there. She had come from a private road 500 yards away.

Mr. Justice Goddard—She must have come at a hard gallop?

The Farmer—I don't know.

Mr. Justice Goddard—The sort of horse to be on for the Derby.

Mr. Streatfeild—It's a pity we are too late for this year's Derby. What was the horse's name? It might be useful to know it.

Mr. Justice Goddard—Oh, well, never mind, Mr. Streatfeild. It might run in the Great Ebor Handicap or something like that. It is a very useful animal, evidently. (Laughter.)

DEER AND SURREY VILLAGE.

COUNCIL WANT THEM DESTROYED.

The depredations of herds of wild deer are causing anxiety among the villagers of Tilford, near Farnham, Surrey.

Night after night the deer leave their forest home to the south-east of Crooksbury Hill and raid the gardens of houses, states the "Star" correspondent.

Farmers, too, are complaining of the ravages of the deer, especially with the root crops.

Tilford Parish Council are petitioning Hambledon Rural Council to take steps either to have the deer exterminated or enclosed.

Lord Midleton has denied to the Parish Council that the deer originated from his famous herd at Peper Harow, a few miles away.

These People Live And Love

"LATE HARVEST": George Blake (Collins, 8s 6d).

GEORGE Blake raised his reputation from a West of Scotland one to a national one by his virile novel, "The Shipbuilders." In his latest work, "Late Harvest," he remains faithful to his beloved West, but he paints some of its social, business, and religious life in unlovely colours.

The venue is a town on the Firth of Clyde, easily identifiable, and the characters are divided between the survivals of the Victorian generation and full-blooded moderns.

Of the two we prefer the former, as represented by the sweet old grandmother of Roddy Melvin, whose love affair with Livvy Queen forms the central theme of the story.

It is not their doings, but the lives of the subsidiary characters, which really make up the book. The romance is an unlikely one and ends in the elopement of the pair after the lady had become engaged to a United Free Church minister. Character after character appears and re-appears in the book, which displays all Mr. Blake's vivid style.

He can make his people live and love. They are not always what he seems to infer—the products of an economic order. Rather are they ordinary people full of human nature and its frailties, for human nature is stronger than any economic system and much stronger than the Socialist system, a fact which is invariably overlooked by Socialist theorists.

Mr. Blake does not go into these matters but at times he seems to leave an inference and also to suggest that the conditions he depicts are the rule and not the exception.

Presbyterianism, for instance, is not the arid plant the hypocrisy of Webster Urie, the Session Clerk, would suggest. Webster is a type peculiar to Scotland, although he may have his imitators even in Northern Ireland. Roddy Melvin, the hero, had ideals and good breeding, but he often chose disreputable company and did not behave like a gentleman.

The book throbs with life and incident, yet at times it irritates, but is entertaining in its exaggerations, clever in its portrayals, and cynical in its conclusions, but as a faithful picture of present-day conditions of the class to which it mainly relates, it is not always correct. There is chaff in the class, but there is also much wheat.

Story of a World Tour

In the course of it, he found England the only country in Europe flourishing, and he pays tribute to our stability in the midst of a sick and weary world.

His trip was made with the object of finding out what was really happening in the nations, and he succeeded on the surface at all events, and the result is this very entertaining volume.

Mr. Lajtha had strange experiences in the South Sea Islands, in the East, in America, including Hollywood, in Europe, north south, east and west, and he found England the best country of the lot—which is flattering to our national vanity.

THE DOCTOR'S CORNER

Watch Baby's Food

Food is more likely to be infected by germs during hot, dry, weather than at other times, and, in fact, the greatest number of cases of bowel disorder amongst infants occurs in the summer months.

Scrupulous cleanliness is essential, and bottles and teats should be sterilised before use and thoroughly washed after. When not in use they should be kept under cover in a cool place.

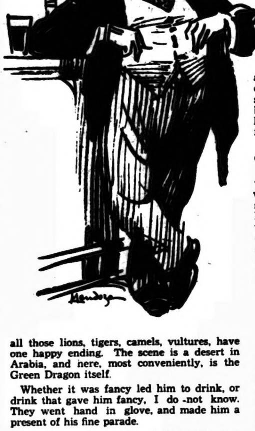
If there is any doubt about the purity of milk, it should be brought to the boil before being used for feeding, and it is safer to boil all drinking water during hot weather.

ULSTER FROM THE AIR

NO. 15—GARRON POINT, CO. ANTRIM.

Honourable Discharge

Six-Minute Story No. 6: by Donald Boyd



THE old cavalier is dead and gone. He managed to be surprising at his end. It was a real surprise, too, and not one of the imitations he palmed off on innocent companions during his lifetime.

They might listen to his stories with mouths agape; the older ones would only add horse-laughter to his recitals, because of them, and his sad state.

He was always in drink, always in a sort of momentum of drink which carried him on in a mockery of sobriety so like its image that you might be taken in if you did not catch the smell. Even then the flowers of speech which accompanied that parade of sobriety were enough to surprise, flatter, and deceive the young.

You must imagine him carrying an umbrella as if it were a sword, and strolling up the street on a fine summer day at noon. He has just wiped his tawny moustache, whose strands carry themselves with symmetrical horizontality across his face, and his face wears a proud and pursy expression.

"My young friend," he says, "all goes well? May I offer you a chocolate? They were sent from Vienna by an old comrade." Out then comes a large round chocolate dressed in bearded tinsel, an immense chocolate.

Reminiscence

THE truth is that the old cavalier is already thirsty, after a morning at the bar, and chooses to continue his drinks even in the form of liqueur chocolates.

This is all, as you gather, some years ago, when bars opened before breakfast and were open all day.

You walk alongside that erect military figure, which wears a hard straw hat a little on one side. He is engaged in a pleasant flow of reminiscence, but just when a crisis appears in the history of Captain the Honourable K— you find yourself halted at the door of the Falstaff "Well, boy, not one for old acquaintance sake? No? We shall meet later." And so he disappears.

This is the one constant in the story of the old cavalier. If the momentum of airy histories is checked, even for one moment the alcoholic romancer within steals a glance backwards over the immense distance travelled in the realms of space. This makes him thirsty. All those deserts he has crossed, all those lions, tigers, camels, vultures, have one happy ending. The scene is a desert in Arabia, and here, most conveniently, is the Green Dragon itself.

Whether it was fancy led him to drink, or drink that gave him fancy, I do not know. They went hand in glove, and made him a present of his fine parade.

Almost my first sight of him was at a meeting of our bowling club. Going into the pavilion I saw him rigidly propped against the wall, and looking as though movement and thought were lost for ever.

There were only seven or eight of the bowlers present and then the small company was enlarged by a group of three: two young reporters supporting the old cavalier who was still wearing his straw hat.

They began to take him to a table provided for the Press, but he checked them, signalling that he wished to be left against the wall. So there they propped him. The meeting went on for a long time, and at some point the shabby mummy by the door took a pencil and notebook out of a pocket and held them stiffly in the air.

The president finished the business with a vote of thanks to the Press, and looked meaningly at the two youngsters. They blushed. He still waited. But it was the old cavalier who replied.

He uptilted himself from the wall, and let slow melodious words trickle out of his mouth. It was such bodies as the bowling club, he said, which ensued, enthused, or infused the true sporting spirit of England. He concluded by asking his audience to bowl hard and ride hard. That was a remarkable performance for an incapable.

There never seemed to be a time when he could not put some gloss on his poor condition.

At the beginning of the war I met him on the top of a tram and told him I was on my way to enlist. He took off his hat. "Boy," he said, "I envy you! Ah! the old regiment! Boy, I will tell you something in confidence that I would not breathe to these dead souls. I cannot go back to the regiment. I could not afford to keep up the position. My means forbid. I honour the regiment dearer than anything on earth. The plate was worth a king's ransom. . . ."

Miserable

ALL this time he was "picking up a living" as a shorthand reporter. It was a miserable business. He had a wife and four children in some back street which he would never name, and somehow they lived on the amount she could make as a charwoman and the amount that his thirst could spare them. He became less glorious as our acquaintance lengthened.

The last time I saw him was at a public dinner. He was bald now, but his moustache asserted its unwaxed horizontality as well as ever. He was dressed in an old cut-away jacket of grey cloth, very large. He told me that he was to write a verbatim report of the speeches and that the secretary was an old friend, and had told him to order what he liked. Hard on that followed a bottle of champagne.

He sat there next to me, emptying the bottle, and explained, with less reserve than usual, that there was no food in his house on Christmas Eve and nothing in his pocket, but one of the cheap Christmas stockings they sell in poor sweet shops. How it got there he did not know. As he was telling me this another bottle of champagne arrived.

Surprise

THEN, at 11 o'clock on Christmas morning a pair of ducks and trimmings arrived. "Perhaps you ordered them yourself," I said. "No," he said with conviction. "It wasn't like that."

He began to write, and I saw that wherever his sleeve rested on the cloth it left a long black smudge. "The children," he said, looking at me sideways from the paper "were crying."

It might have occurred to anyone to say that the old cavalier was almost altogether worthless except as a drinking companion. Yet there is that £150. It was accumulated over 30 years and there was not one withdrawal in the bank book.

There may have come to him terrible moments in which he saw his future and his end, moments which drove him to the savings bank to put in half a crown or five shillings. But there must have come to him more terrible moments in which the desire for drink whipped him towards the bank to draw money out. Yet every time he won.

Perhaps those savings were the moral truth to which his nature clung, his heaven and harbour and his happy dream. They marked the secret conflict of his soul, a hidden integrity.

They were a complete surprise to his wife. She was, by this time, a realist. His death was a good riddance, but she spent £50 on a granite headstone, and the words "Faithful unto death" were carved upon it.

Surname Sidelights—ROBB

THE surname Robb is derived from the name Robert, which is in turn derived from the old German, Ruadpert, from rat-brecht, signifying illustrious councillor. The first Robb of the Norman ilk was Jordon le Robb, who came to England in 1066, and whose descendants settled in Edinburgh. There are many families of the name descended from Robert Macfarlane, who was descended from the ancient Celtic Earls of Lennox, and assumed the surname of Robb. This is why the Macfarlane tartan is sported by Scottish families of Robb. The M'Robbs are, of course, descendants of the son of Robb.

THE first reference we have discovered to this name in Northern Ireland is in an agreement dated December, 1633, made between the Rt. Hon. Lord Viscount Montgomery, Rt. Hon. James, Lord Viscount Clandeboye, and others, in which John Robb, of Carrowreagh, was appointed one of the assessors in connection with the division of certain lands.

Of the Ulster families of that name James Robb, one of our first architects, founded a family at Ballynahinch. He was an apprentice to Inigo Jones, came to Ireland about 1660, and died at Ballynahinch, January, 1723. Some of his descendants are settled in Italy.

One of the most distinguished persons of the name is Major-General Frederick Spencer Robb, D.A.A.G. War Office, late commanding officer Durham Light Infantry, and son of Alexander Robb, Captain R.N., A.D.C. to Queen Victoria.

OF the Newtownards and district families of that name, one of the most outstanding members is Mr. David W. Robb, the renowned mechanical engineer, whose grandfather, Alexander Robb, was born at Newtownards. Mr. Robb resides at Amherst, Nova Scotia.

There were Robb families settled at Ballybeen, Dundonald, Bangor, Lisburn, Templepatrick, and in Belfast and district, some of whom have ranked high in the world of commerce.

The Portadown Robb family were the pioneers of the linen industry in that district. According to the death notice of William Robb, of Banview, Portadown, who died in 1834, the Robbs then employed 1,300 hands. The late Hamilton Robb carried on a linen factory in Portadown which still trades under that name.

FAMILIES of the name of Robb have been resident in the city and district of Londonderry for a long time according to the records. Mr. Andrew Robb, solicitor, is the best known person of that name there.

The late Dr. A. Robb, of Lisnabreeny, the distinguished scholar, was well known in the scientific world during the present century. Then we have the Hon. J. H. Robb, the Minister of Education. We have also Dr. J. C. Robb, county surgeon; Mr. C. J. Robb, the antiquary, and several well known members of the medical profession of that surname in Belfast.

Striking a Topical Note

This week's winner certainly strikes a topical note. It is a picture of four-year-old John Hanna, for which Mrs. Hanna, of 10 Kirklowe Drive, Finaghy, Belfast, receives half-a-guinea.

Next week another 10/6 awaits the happiest amateur snap of a youngster. Address prints to "Happy Childhood Competition," Belfast Telegraph, Royal Avenue, Belfast, and post them to arrive not later than first delivery on Wednesday, July 13. A PLAIN MAN'S SERMON

Litter In Our Lives

HOW to prevent the befouling of the countryside and the desecration of its chief beauty spots with unsightly litter remains a problem which seems to increase, rather than diminish.

In spite of repeated appeals through the wireless, in spite of teaching given to school-children, in spite of prosecutions of offenders by some of the more progressive local Councils, this nuisance goes on unabated.

It seems that there is a section of the nation to whom it is beyond the power of anybody to teach good manners. And it is a section composed of all classes; for some of the very worst offenders are those who are supposedly educated.

The more charitably disposed sort of people will tell you that this disgusting habit is due to thoughtlessness; and if it were really due to nothing worse than this, there might be some hope that it could eventually be cured. But unfortunately, it is due to something far worse. It is due to indiscipline.

In Britain, we have, unfortunately, a type of person who believes that he is showing his independence by refusing to do what he is asked, and "is not going to be told by anybody what he ought, or ought not, to do."

Well, if we cannot get rid of the litter pest, let us at least see if we cannot make use of him "to point a moral and adorn a tale."

Make Your Life a Beauty Spot .

THE countryside is not the only place where litter is to be found lying about and causing unsightliness and disfigurement. Litter is to be found also in human lives, where it spoils the beauty of the prospect just as much as it does anywhere else. After all every life could be—and ought to be a beauty-spot, where charming and pleasant things are to be found, which it is a joy to contemplate—"where every prospect pleases."

Many lives, thank God, are like this—not necessarily "goody-goody" or pious or strait-laced; but lives which have a wholesome charm about them, and from which you get the same benefit and pleasure as you do from the contemplation of a fair landscape.

"But, Lord," as Mr. Samuel Pepys would say, "what litter most of us do leave lying about, which just spoils everything!" "Litter" is the right word for what I mean; for I am not thinking of gross sins and really evil things, but rather of things which are disfigurements of the same kind as litter is.

There is nothing wrong about orange-peel, paper bags, empty cartons, and lemonade bottles. They are, when strewn about the countryside, just things out of place—and quite unnecessarily out of place, because they could so very easily be gathered up and put away with the very smallest amount of trouble. It is the fact that people could so easily clear their litter away, if they would, that makes its presence doubly offensive.

Think then of some of those bad habits which we make no real effort to tidy up and put away. Losing our tempers, for instance. It is quite likely that we consider our outbursts of bad temper as no more than a trifling weakness of no great importance. But those who have to live in a family where there is a bad-tempered member are of a very different opinion!

Unpleasant and Offensive . . .

BAD temper is something which is quite easily curable. It requires actually nothing more than some elementary self-control, the exercise of a little will-power, and the remembrance of how unpleasant it can make the lives of other people, in order to put it away. But how often it is left undealt with, to become a serious disfigurement to what might otherwise be an attractive character.

Or the bad language habit. I have never been able to see that bad language is a sin. It is merely an unpleasant and offensive habit of the same kind as having dirty fingernails or belching at table. It is totally unnecessary, and it strikes the same jarring note that refuse and rubbish does when left lying about in an otherwise well-kept garden. Here again, it requires very little effort to get rid of it. Why not clear it away and make things tidy and pleasant for everybody?

Then there is another form of litter which many people—far too many—leave lying about in their lives in the form of unpaid debts and loans from friends never repaid. What strikes one as so odd is the fact that you meet so many people who seem quite unable to realise what a very ugly blot this form of petty larceny is on their characters.

Their friends think what nice people they are; but what does the tradesman think about them from whom they have obtained on credit goods for which they will not pay? The "won't pay" brigade are, in another form, just the same sort of social pests as are the litter fiends. They destroy the amenities of life; cause worry and anxiety to their victims, and make things dearer for everyone else.

Many of us might be all the better if we would clear away some of the undesirable friendships which we have formed. I wonder how many excellent people have allowed all that was best in them to be marred and spoilt by the influence of some person or persons whose acquaintanceship they have made. Some so-called "friendships" are no better than very undesirable litter in people's lives, and "just the ruin of them." Holiday time now with us, is a great time for making chance acquaintances. At this season we have especial need of commonsense.

FRANCO'S PUSH TO VALENCIA

TENACITY OF DEFENDERS

IN MOUNTAIN BATTLE.

[illegible] Franco's drive for Sagunto [illegible] is now concentrated on the [illegible] positions in the picturesque [illegible] Espadan, where many of the [illegible] peaks are more than 400 feet [illegible] states the "Daily Telegraph [illegible] Post" Valencia correspondent [illegible] in the orange groves of [illegible] the Mediterranean coast [illegible] continues. From there [illegible] 50 miles inland, the [illegible] defenders are tenaciously [illegible] against the insurgent batteries.

[illegible] high ground above Nules [illegible] watched General Franco's [illegible] an oblique attack, attempting to break through [illegible] the town on the foothills of the [illegible] if this drive is successful the [illegible] of the Government troops to [illegible] might be cut off.

HEAVY LOSSES.

Directing their main assault on Villavieja, four miles west of Nules, the insurgents continued to adopt their [illegible] tactics without variation. Artillery and aviation were used on an enormous scale.

In spite of this, however, the insurgents' losses were particularly heavy around Bechi, where they suffered several thousand casualties. The Government troops have prevented the use of motorised columns, and have forced the attackers to fight on foot.

Some of the heaviest fighting of the war has been seen in this arid hinterland during the past few weeks. Several mountain peaks have changed hands four times.

When they are overwhelmed by their adversaries' material the Government forces have to retire, but they sell their positions dearly, inflicting very heavy losses on the attackers.

TERRORISTIC BOMBING.

As I returned from the front last evening I saw five Savoia aeroplanes drop six bombs on the tiny village of Estivella. It is far from the firing line, and I could see nothing even remotely resembling a military objective. Only one house was wrecked and one person injured.

This kind of purely terroristic bombing goes on continually in the whole Valencia-Sagunto region. It is sad to see homes wantonly wrecked in small hamlets which have not even a blacksmith's forge by way of "objective."

ORDERS IN ITALIAN.

The insurgent troops in the Castellon sector are mixed divisions of Spaniards, Moors, Italians, and Foreign Legionaries. Many Moors have recently arrived, most of them very young. Italian motor mechanics, who were captured recently, said that they formed part of a large Italian staff, which apparently controlled nearly all the transport arrangements of General Franco's army.

The officer commanding the whole Levante army told me yesterday that a despatch rider captured last week was carrying instructions in Italian from the commander of the Navarre Division to the artillery.

INSURGENTS TAKE NULES.

BARCELONA, Friday.—The capture by the insurgents of Nules, an important point in their advance southwards on Valencia, is admitted by the Government in the Ministry of National Defence communique to-night.

"Fighting," says the communique, "has assumed a character of extreme violence in the eastern sector of the Levante front where the forces in the service of the foreign invasion, strongly protected by aviation, forced us to evacuate the village of Nules, south of which intense fighting is now going on."

The capture of Nules, which is about 25 miles from Valencia, leaves the way open for an insurgent advance on Sagunto.—Central News.

FOREIGNERS IN THE YANGTSE TOWNS.

"INTENSIVE BOMBARDMENT."

SHANGHAI, Saturday.—Foreshadowing an intensive bombardment of Kiukiang and Kuling, on the Yangtse River, Japanese naval headquarters to-day urged on foreign consuls the immediate evacuation of all foreign nationals, merchantmen, and warships, between Hukow and Whangshikang (about halfway between Kiukiang and Hankow).

They announced that they regard Kiukiang and Kuling as military objectives owing to the presence there of Chinese troops.

Several Britons and Americans are still at these two places, and one British and one American gunboat.—Press Association Foreign Special.

SO-CALLED MONK WAS SPY.

HANKOW, Saturday.—A partiality for "sing-song" girls on the part of a self-announced Buddhist monk here has resulted in the discovery of a spy ring.

Arriving in Hankow from Shanghai, the "monk," Yang Chao, brought with him papers stating that he was the head priest of the "Temple of the Fragrant Woods" in Nanking, and also secretary of the relief corps of the Buddhist Society operating in the war areas.

It was then found that the "monk" and his accomplices were sending military information to the Japanese.—Reuter.

THE NEWS SOON SPREAD.

MACHINE THAT TOOK FARTHINGS.

When five Streatham schoolboys were charged at South London Juvenile Court with stealing packets of cigarettes from a machine outside a Streatham Vale tobacconist's a detective said there was a defect in the machine, and the owner found one slot full of farthings instead of sixpences.

One of the boys apparently found out the defect, and the news spread through the school. The machine was watched, and five boys were caught in the act. Each had a number of farthings and packets of cigarettes in his possession.

Three boys were fined 2s each, and the other two, who had been in trouble before, were sent to a remand home.

ROME IS GROWING UNEASY

OVER SPAIN AFFAIR.

NON-INTERVENTION FEAR.

PLAN MAY FAIL AFTER ALL.

ROME, Friday.—As the days pass and the British Government continues its examinations of General Franco's proposals connected with the bombing of British ships and Spanish civilians, feeling here has grown a shade less hopeful about the success of the Non-Intervention Plan and prospects of a speedy settlement in Spain. Thoughtful persons and people near Government circles are asking whether the adoption of the British Plan has brought matters nearer a solution, and their answer is in the negative, wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

The very sincerity of Italian desire to reach a favourable solution after two years' warfare is causing a searching of hearts. Suggestions from Paris that no substantial progress can be expected before Christmas has added to a feeling of doubt in responsible quarters. If Paris is right, considerable anxiety will be felt as to what may happen on land and sea during the next six months.

The alleged camouflaging of international volunteers who are fighting with the Republican forces as Spaniards, will certainly upset General Franco when the Plan comes to be discussed in detail, and it may mean a very serious stumbling block to its execution. It is claimed here that thousands of foreigners fighting with "Red" Spain have now become Spanish citizens with the connivance of Barcelona and Madrid, but the principal difficulty in the Italians' opinion lies in the hostility in Great Britain and France to a settlement of the Spanish war, because it would mean the coming into force of the Anglo-Italian Agreement, the recognition by Great Britain of the Italian Empire in Abyssinia and the re-establishment of terms of good neighbourliness and friendship between Great Britain and Italy.

It is now the firm belief of a large number of responsible Italians that inside Parliament and outside there are numbers of Britons who do not wish to see Mr. Chamberlain and Signor Mussolini succeed in achieving these desirable ends.

It is recognised that this alleged movement is stronger and more widespread in France than in Great Britain, but it is also suggested that the British Government and its supporters in the Parliament and in the country could and should use their close friendship with France to modify hostility against, and mistrust of Italian intentions.

There is also a conviction that the Barcelona Government will bring forth various objections against the execution of the British Plan in order to gain time and put off the evil day of General Franco's complete victory. Rightly or wrongly opinion here is that General Franco's victory is a certainty.

MRS. TUPPER-CAREY KILLED

WIFE OF GUERNSEY CANON.

Mr. Tupper-Carey, wife of Canon A. D. Tupper-Carey, the British chaplain at Monte Carlo, was killed yesterday afternoon by a 'bus when she was crossing the road at the corner of Vere Street and Oxford Street.

Canon Tupper-Carey, who belongs to an old Guernsey family, had been in London with his wife for about three weeks, and the Sunday before last he preached at St. James's Church, Piccadilly. He was formerly a canon of York.

Mrs. Tupper-Carey was 56 years of age.

ANTI-RELIGIOUS CELLS.

IN ALL RED ARMY UNITS.

Emilian Yaroslavsky, president of the militant Godless Ones League, explains in the "Red Star," the General Staff organ, that it is urgently necessary to create special anti-religious cells in every unit of the Red Army.

Their object, he says, would be to combat the destructively anti-social Christian doctrine about forgiving one's enemies, all men being brothers, and all being equal before God regardless of the class to which they belong.

This article is important because its veteran author combines the functions of chief official atheist and the post of President of the Central Control Committee.

"All religious teaching," says Yaroslavsky, "has only one aim—to weaken the will to struggle. We will not permit anybody to corrupt the soldier masses thus. The Red soldier must be taught that every religion is reactionary and that enormous harm is done by priests and Tolstoyan propaganda."

It is admitted that despite the atheist education to which they have already been submitted, many conscripts return to their native villages with their religious faith unshaken.

THE FITTER WHO FORGOT.

KILLED DISMANTLING GUN.

While an 18-pounder field-gun was being dismantled at Woolwich Arsenal the fitter found that he could not unscrew part of the mechanism. He called an examiner, Wm. James Dobson, aged 49, of Red Lion Lane, Shooter's Hill, London, to help him.

Mr. Dobson tried to unscrew the mechanism, then he counted the threads and remarked—"There should be nothing to hold it." As he said this there was an explosion, he was struck, and died in hospital the same night.

At the Lewisham inquest evidence was given that the recuperator block of the gun, which takes the shock after a shell is fired, is controlled by compressed air. Before a gun can be dismantled safely, the compressed air must be released.

The fitter, Keith M'Donald, of Grove Lane, Camberwell, said, "I had released the oil plugs and I had been round the other end of the gun to release the air pressure. I had taken the adaptor plug out, but for some unearthly reason I forgot to release the air valve, although it was quite close to the plug."

The foreman engineer, Wm. Munro, considered it was the human element which caused the accident.

Major J. M. Brewis said the operation of dismantling the gun was a very simple one, and replying to the coroner, said, "I put the accident down to momentary forgetfulness, or mental aberration on the part of the man concerned."

The jury's verdict was accidental death, and the foreman added, "We exonerate everyone."

WORLD RECORDS ON MOTOR-CYCLES

Sixteen world records for motor-cycles have been established on the Montlhery track by a team of 11 French Army captains chosen by the War Ministry, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Paris correspondent. A Gnome-Rhone machine was driven round the track for eight days. Stops were made every two hours for refuelling, change of driver, and check-up.

The records include—3,000 miles at 72.32 miles per hour, 10,000 miles at 70.24 miles per hour, and eight days at 69.63 miles per hour.

MR. KENNEDY'S VISIT TO DUBLIN.

AFTER-DINNER SPEECH.

BLOOD AND THE OCEAN.

HYDE—DE VALERA ALLUSIONS.

"I come to Dublin in the happy consciousness that I can put wholly aside my brief diplomatic garment and say what is in my mind," said Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, the United States Ambassador to the United Kingdom, in replying to the toast of his health at the State banquet in Dublin on Friday evening.

Mr. Kennedy, who intends to visit Belfast in September to call on representatives of the Ulster Government, said there was a sense of harmony which fused all that he was and all that he felt for that land, the mother of his race; for Great Britain, the area of his immediate activity; and for the United States, his native country of his first loyalty.

"This sense of comity," he said, "flows from the fact that all three nations, which in this vital moment touch my being, stand out among the nations of the earth in their desire for peace, for individual liberty, for acceptance of the true humanist doctrine of live and let live.

"This being so, I come to Dublin in the happy consciousness that I can put wholly aside my brief diplomatic garment and say what is in my mind. I need not conceal my high admiration for Great Britain and its people, my sentimental attachment to this soil and to you. I need not discourse in polite or political phrases.

"I can say, and I do say, that nothing could be more in keeping with my nativity, my ancestry, and my official position than to express the feelings of ancient homage and love in this presence.

"The Kennedys and the Hickeys were my grandparents. The Kennedys lived at Wexford Field in Cork, and the hearthstone of the Hickeys was at Clonakilty. My parents and my grandparents talked ever of Ireland, and from my youth I have been intent upon this pilgrimage.

"I did not dream I should come as I come to-day, tendered the laurel of an old and eminent university, the supreme honour of a State banquet, and the warm handclasps of the great men of my own blood. In all humility I receive them, but you will understand when I say that the greater and dearer than them all is the experience of breathing these airs and standing on this earth.

"I stand upon it with even greater pride," he continued, "in the progress of the State of Ireland because of a choice recently made among you. Need I say that the choic to which I refer was that of Dr. Douglas Hyde to be President of the State, an act that is eloquent of that brotherhood and tolerance which remain the hope of mankind in an angry world?

"Between my own country and Great Britain there have been two wars. Happily there is never to be another. Between this land of my fathers and the British there have been many wars. Happily there is never to be another.

"The broad Atlantic washes our shores. To us it is mare nostrum; and when I consider the policies of your great leader, Eamon De Valera, of the British Crown and Prime Minister, and of the eminent statesman, President Roosevelt, who is my chief, I see a joined determination that blood shall not flow in this ocean again—the blood of brothers; that there is sufficient place in the sun for all of us; and that God, whom we all worship, is to us the same in spiritual concept."

FOR BELFAST IN SEPTEMBER.

Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, United States Ambassador, at present on a visit to Dublin, has intimated his intention of coming to Belfast in September.

Alderman Byrne, T.D., Lord Mayor of Dublin, when he received Mr. Kennedy in the Mansion House yesterday, expressed the hope that his visit would help to end partition.

The Ambassador's reply was that his dearest wish was peace and happiness for the Irish, American, and British people, but he could not directly interfere in certain matters, such as the Border.

BELFAST CHOIRMASTER.

TO CONDUCT NEWRY SOCIETY.

Mr. J. Crossley Clitheroe, F.R.S.A., organist and choirmaster of St. Peter's Parish Church, Belfast, has been appointed conductor of the Newry Philharmonic Society in succession to the late Mr. George Harrison White.

Mr. Clitheroe is at present conductor of the Londonderry Philharmonic Society, the Excelsior Male Voice Choir, and the Oriana Singers, Belfast. Associated with the Newry Philharmonic Society is the "Walden" Stringed Orchestra conducted and led by Mrs. N. Henry.

CINEMA MIDNIGHT MATINEE.

FOR BANGOR HOSPITAL FUNDS.

Notwithstanding the unholidaylike weather, there were many visitors from across the Channel and other parts of Ireland in the large audience entertained at Friday's midnight matinee held in the Tonic Cinema, Bangor. The proceeds were in aid of Bangor Hospital. Amongst those present was the Mayor of Bangor (Alderman Dr. R. M. Bowman, J.P.).

The programme, which was compered by Mr. Gerald Morrison (manager of the Empire Theatre), was abundant in variety and talent and from beginning to end was thoroughly appreciated. Frank Rea and his "Orpheans" Dance Band; the Vera M'Cann School of Dancing, with Vera M'Cann and little Leah Glenn in individual items; Bob Randewitch, with his comedy song "Ha-Ho"; that Ulster favourite, Jimmy Steen (accompanied by Jimmy Brown, accordionist)—Jimmy "smoked" almost a whole box of matches in endeavouring to light his 'oul clay pipe; the Dexams, comedy acrobats, and Roy Martin, baritone, were enjoyable numbers on the first half of the programme.

After the interval a new type of sketch, entitled "Bangor 84," was played to good effect by the Misses Viola Burns, Maeve Norman, Rosamund Wilson, Agnes Wilson, Sadie Wilson, and Messrs. Tom Faulkner, Charles Bayley, Alan Desmond and Hugh Brown. Mr. James Johnston (tenor) was given a warm reception for his contributions, and Mrs. Rooney added another good cause for merriment. Completing the entertainment in a fitting manner, the Ormiston Choir (conducted by Mr. Wm. Boyd), rendered several well known songs and choruses. A grand finale, complete with choir, orchestra, cast—everybody—joined in singing Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem.

Contributing very largely to the success of the show were Mr. Stendal Todd, organist of the Tonic Cinema, who was responsible for the entire production, and Mr. Richard Tanner, who was stage manager. Mr. Todd also played the accompaniments, and gave a new presentation of his own.

After the show the artists were entertained to tea, and thanks were expressed to the management of the Tonic for their generous support to the hospital. The show, incidentally, marked the Tonic's second birthday, and all who were present will undoubtedly wish it "many happy returns."

AIDING POLITICAL REFUGEES.

BRITAIN-U.S. ACCORD

ON EVIAN PLANS.

LONDON LIKELY HEADQUARTERS.

I understand that there is now agreement on all fundamental points between the British and United States delegations to the conference which is considering means of aiding political refugees, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Evian-les-Bains correspondent. Certain details may still be referred to the two Governments, but there is no real divergence. The French delegation will support the agreement in its main lines.

If this agreement is ultimately translated into action by the unanimous votes of the committee—and it should be clearly understood that unanimity is the supreme desideratum—there will be a kind of standing Executive Committee, with headquarters either in London or Paris—probably London. It will be charged with carrying on the work of the Evian Committee for German and Austrian refugees.

FIVE NATIONS ON COMMITTEE.

This committee will, I understand, consist of representatives of Great Britain, France, the United States, the Argentine, and Brazil, and will be empowered to co-opt representatives of other Governments when necessary. It has not yet been decided whether the committee itself or the British Government, acting for it, will negotiate with the German Government when necessary.

The Executive Committee will maintain the closest liaison with the League High Commissioner for Refugees from Germany, General Sir Neill Malcolm.

The scope of the committee's work can be extended should circumstances require to cover refugees other than those from Germany and Austria.

It is thought in Evian-les-Bains that while the British would on the whole prefer an American chief administrator for the work, they are prepared to yield to the American desire to co-operate at less short range in what is at least in the first instance a European problem.

BASIS OF DISCUSSION.

There is now a feeling that there is at least an initial basis of discussion on which complete unanimity may probably be obtained next week. While the progress about to be realised may fall short of some high hopes, it must be admitted that it achieves three things.

It provides for the continuity of refugee aid along agreed lines working in with what the League is doing.

While not attempting any form of mass settlement, which might create as many difficulties as it would solve, it does open the door a little further for the admission of refugees to other countries.

It aims at the ultimate collaboration of the refugees' country of origin in bearing some proportion of the expenses to which that country's action has given rise. This was a point strongly emphasised by Earl Winterton and by the represeptative of Canada.

VIENNA JEWS' NEW HOPE.

The Jewish community in Vienna, which has been in the depths of despair, has received fresh hope from the International Conference at Evian which has been dealing with the problem of the world's 17,000,000 Jews, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. Although nothing has been published in the newspapers in Austria, private reports have reached Vienna of the speeches of the delegates of Australia and Canada on proposals for Jewish emigration to those countries.

Vienna Jews have been greatly encouraged by the general willingness expressed at Evian to do the utmost that can be done for the prompt emigration of Jews from Germany and Austria.

Official police figures issued last night, though not complete, reveal that from May 20 to July 8 the total of attempted suicides recorded was 349. This total includes 86 Jews who killed themselves, and 74 who tried and failed.

It has been reported abroad that many police officers have been arrested and that one committed suicide, but there is no confirmation of these rumours, and the police deny them.

WIND FANS BELFAST FIRE.

TWO VILLAS DESTROYED.

BRIGADE'S BRIDGE HANDICAP.

When two semi-detached houses caught fire on Upper Cavehill Road on Friday night the flames were visible over a wide area and attracted many people in the district. More than half a dozen telephone calls were received at the Belfast Fire Station and the Brigade made a speedy turnout.

When the firemen arrived on the scene, however, they found that the flames had secured a firm hold and it was impossible to save the houses, which were completely gutted.

They are new semi-detached villas on the Upper Cavehill Road, one vacant and the other occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bell, who had only left the premises at six o'clock that evening to go to Islandmagee.

On arrival at the spot the Brigade were hampered in their efforts by the old bridge at the city boundary, under which it was impossible to get the fire engines. A powerful motor pump was set in action and the water was conveyed by a line of hose from the Cavehill Road to the blazing houses.

A high wind soon whipped the flames into a raging furnace, from which showers of sparks were carried to adjoining houses, but the danger of a spread in that direction was speedily prevented by the firemen, who later examined neighbouring houses to make sure that nothing had been ignited.

The seat of the outbreak was located inside the house, and the flames had practically destroyed the interior before they attracted attention. The entire contents were reduced to ashes at an early stage, and it was impossible to save the buildings.

It was only in March last that Mr. and Mrs. Bell entered the house and brought in new furniture.

A RATEPAYER'S GRIEVANCE.

Sir,—May I draw attention to the state of affairs existing with reference to the Old Cavehill Bridge. Last night we had a disastrous fire, two villas being gutted, fortunately without loss of life. This was by the mercy of Providence, as when the brigade came along they found that it was impossible to get their machines under the bridge, and could only use a length of hose with very little pressure of water. Had this bridge not been there, one of these houses would have certainly been saved. It is high time something was done to enforce the removal of this bridge. It has been promised long enough, and surely the events of last night should spur the responsible authorities to give this most serious grievance their immediate attention.—Yours, etc.,

THE BOYS' BRIGADE.

AT GANAWAY CAMP.

PROVINCIAL LADS ARRIVE.

ULSTER PARTIES CROSS CHANNEL.

The members of the Boys' Brigade have settled down to the camp at Ganaway, Millisle, and are already enjoying their stay under canvas.

Companies from Bangor, Lurgan, Ballymena, and Crossgar arrived on Friday and were given a cordial welcome. The First East Cowes and First Ryde contingents are thoroughly enjoying their visit in Ulster.

Rev. W. Chestnutt, M.A., chaplain, conducted the prayers on Friday morning. A feature of the devotional life of the camp are the Bible readings in the tents and silent prayer at the close of the day.

NOW IN SCOTLAND.

The 2nd and 84th Belfast Companies left via Larne and Stranraer on Thursday evening for Kilnatchan Bay, near Rothesay, in the Kyles of Bute, where they will camp with the First Rothesay Company. Mr. H. H. M'Nellly (captain, 2nd Belfast Company) was in charge of the party.

The 34th and 38th Belfast Companies left yesterday for Dunoon, and the 18th Belfast, with a Lisburn contingent, made for Ayr.

Under Mr. J. Millar (captain, 15th Belfast Company), members of the 14th, 15th, and 77th Belfast Companies have gone to Blackpool, where they will camp for the next week. The First Larne Company, under Mr. J. W. Sandford, with a strong contingent left for Balrossie, in Kilmacolm, Renfrewshire.

THE KING'S INTEREST.

King George VI. has again shown his keen interest in the camp of the Aberdeen Battalion of the Boys' Brigade. Through his Commissioner at Balmoral, his Majesty has sent to the Aberdeen Battalion a contribution of £5 to the camp fund.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

CONSISTENCY OF WALL STREET

CONFIDENCE RETURNING

LONDON, Friday Night.—In the past week the very welcome recovery in security values which was initiated a fortnight ago has been continued on the Stock Exchange. It is felt that the international political situation is much less menacing than it was, while at the same time, and partly due to this impression, there has occurred the most consistent recovery on Wall Street that has been registered for many months.

Other encouraging factors have been the Anglo-German debt agreement, hopes of better trade with the U.S.A. as a result of the trade pact now in process of being hammered out, and lastly the removal of the suspense that has surrounded the position of Richard Thomas and Company.

Adverse factors have been the continuance of discouraging home and foreign railway traffics and unemployment figures, but it is hoped that the other main factors will operate so as to occasion such a strengthening of confidence in the outlook generally as will of itself result in improved world trade.

British Government stocks have responded sharply to the political improvement and there has been a marked inclination to exchange from the short dated to the longer or undated issues.

Home Rails have fallen back on the decrease of £231,000 reported in the aggregate group line gross take for the past week, while movements in the Foreign Railway market have been unimportant and irregular. In neither market has there been much business.

BIG GAINS IN FOREIGN BONDS.

Further big rises have been recorded in Australian and German Bonds on the strength of the new debt agreement, and there has been a very welcome, if not large, recovery in Brazilian Bonds as the result of some speculative buying of them.

Industrial shares generally have gone ahead, with Newspaper, Tobacco and Iron and Steel shares prominent, the last-mentioned being undoubtedly stimulated by the regulation of the position of Richard Thomas & Co., which undertaking is now to be financed and controlled by the representatives of the leading banks (including the Bank of England) and the iron and steel trade.

While the Ordinary shares of the company have fallen further to 3s the Preference shares have eased to 8s 9d, while the 4 per cent. Debenture stock (now to be 4½ per cent.) is 2½ up at 76½ ex-dividend.

MOTORS AND AIRCRAFTS GOOD.

There has been some revival of interest in the motor and radio manufacturing companies shares, while the leading aircraft issues have moved ahead on the more than doubled earnings reported for the past year by the Handley Page Company.

The interim distribution of the leading banks so far declared have been maintained at their last year's rates.

The Cable and Wireless Ordinary stock has enjoyed a good recovery on the strength of the confident tone of the statements made anent the company's prospects by the chairman of the Globe Telegraph and Trust.

MINING SHARES REACTIONARY.

After displaying firmness for most of the week the Mining share market developed weakness on Friday and a good proportion of the early gains were wiped out. The balance of changes, however, are in an upward direction as compared with a week ago. Western Holdings have changed hands freely, while West Rand Investment Trusts have been sought after. Western Rand issues, however, have been easier.

Coppers after a firm start fell away on lower Wall Street advices, and the drop in the metal, which after having been £1 14s 4½d higher up till Wednesday, dropped 4s 4½d on Thursday, and £1 10s 7½d on Friday.

Tin shares also showed a reactionary tendency on Friday, after having been firm for most of the week. The price of the metal is £2 3s 9d per ton higher as compared with a week ago.

OIL SHARES WEAKEN.

The Oil share market displayed firmness for most of the week, but in common with most other sections, dropped back on Friday, and although the whole of the week's gains were not wiped out they were materially lessened.

RUBBERS BELOW THE BEST.

Rubber shares are firmer as compared with a week ago, but are well below the best points. The commodity after having touched 7 9-16d per lb. fell to 7½d per lb. on Friday. Rubber stocks showed an increase of 1,375 tons on the week.

TEA SHARES QUIET.

Quiet conditions have prevailed in the Tea share market; during the past week price movements, which have been small, being in an upward direction.

A SOUTH AFRICAN BREWERY.

The shares of some of the South African Industrial companies introduced to this side during the past two or three years have signally failed to answer expectations, but it is hoped that they may recover. The breweries established in South Africa have done uncommonly well but they now possess old businesses which are always growing with the expansion of the Union. South African Breweries was formed in 1895 and Ohlssons Cape Breweries in 1889, so competitors would not have any easy task in an attempt to gain a footing. For the past two years Ohlssons has paid a dividend and bonus of 17½ per cent. and at the annual meeting the chairman stated that the company should be able to maintain distributions on a capital increased by £75,000. The £1 shares are quoted at 3⅜ to yield nearly 6 per cent., the British tax payable being about 2s 9d in the £1.

BUFFER TIN POOL DETAILS.

The details of the Buffer Tin Pool are now available. It is proposed to build up stocks of 10,000 tons, which may be increased by resolution of the International Tin Committee to a maximum of 15,000 tons. The first 5,000 tons are to be obtained by the end of October and the balance by January 31 next.

The output quota is now 45 per cent., and 10 per cent. will be allotted to the Pool, leaving 6,483 tons per month for world consumption. As this is less than 80,000 tons per annum stocks should show a sensible decline in three months, for consumption is running at over 100,000 tons, and with America on the up grade, the pace should be accelerated.

ANGLO-ECUADORIAN OIL SETTLEMENT.

The directors of Anglo-Ecuadorian Oilfields, Ltd., are now able to announce a settlement of the questions at issue with the Ecuadorian Government. As from January 1, 1938, the rate of royalty on crude oil production is increased from 7 per cent. to 10 per cent. The import franchise has been cancelled, and all goods imported are to be subjected to the general tariff for the time being in force. This tariff, however, places a portion of the items imported by the company on the free list, and it is not yet possible to estimate the amount of the increase in working costs which will thereby be involved. The company's exemption from payment of income tax has been cancelled, and it has been called upon to pay back tax for the years 1935, 1936, and 1937, and thereafter to pay the tax annually as due. The rate of tax is 8 per cent. Payment has been made, though under protest. The effect of this additional taxation will, it is admitted, be serious, but the board are of the opinion that, provided crude oil prices are maintained, there is every prospect that the company will be able to continue the payment of dividends. Operations on the property, it is added, have continued throughout without interruption, and are proceeding normally.

PREF. DIVIDEND DEFERRED.

The directors of Celestion, Ltd., electrical and acoustical engineers, specialising in the manufacture of wireless loudspeakers, etc., have decided to defer payment of the Preference dividend till a later date, but will give this matter further consideration before the end of the current year. The dividend on the issued 0,721 Preference shares is paid to March 31, 1937, but no distribution has yet been made on the 10,651 Ordinary £1 shares. In August, 1935, the paid-up capital was reduced from £119,507 to only £9,964, so that the share-holders in this company have not had a very happy time of it.

NEW AIRCRAFT CAPITAL.

Phillips & Powis Aircraft, Limited, have now arranged to increase their capital by the creation of a further 200,000 Ordinary 5s shares to be offered to Ordinary shareholders at par in the proportion of two in five. They have also accepted the offer of Rolls Royce, Limited, to advance up to £115,000 to the company on the second Debentures at 4 per cent. per annum. The articles of association are to be amended. – The final date of conversion of the 5s Preference shares into ordinary 5s Ordinary shares is to be extended from April 30, 1939, till April 30, 1942, and the conversion price is to be reduced from 8s to par.

THE CITY OF DERRY REGATTA.

DUBLIN CHALLENGE TO ULSTER OARSMEN.

RACING ON ROSSES BAY COURSE.

The annual regatta organised by the City of Derry Boating Club was held today.

This year the committee decided to revert to the former course, which is from a point in Rosses Bay to a point opposite the club steps. That this decision was a welcome one from the public viewpoint was evidenced by the increased attendance.

The capital of Eire was well represented, there being competing crews from University College (Dublin) B.C. and Dublin University B.C., while in addition to local entries there were crews from Bann B.C., Belfast Commercial B.C., Belfast B.C., and Portadown B.C.

Excellent arrangements were made by the Derry Boating Club officials—Messrs. E. G. Bigger (commodore), E. H. Babington (captain), H. Lee (vice-captain), G. E. C. M'Leer (hon. secretary), M. J. Imrie (regatta hon. treasurer), and T. F. Glass, while the Regatta Committee, of which Mr. Jas. Anderson, J.P., is chairman, also rendered valuable assistance.

Other officials were—Starters, Messrs. J. Brownlow, T. F. Glass, H. T. Lee, and C. M'Candless; umpires—Messrs. R. B. W. Irwin, T. E. Kellock, E. H. Babington, and D. R. Keown; judges—Messrs. G. E. Austin, Sir James Wilton, M.C., and Mr. T. F. Glass, with officials of other competing clubs.

The weather conditions unfortunately were far from favourable. Despite a rising glass the regatta commenced under a leaden sky and rain was falling heavily when the junior sculls' event was rowed.

From the competitors' point of view, however, conditions were not so bad as anticipated. The surface of the bay was almost as calm as a mill pond, the slight breeze merely raising a gentle ripple. The rain, however, resulted in the events being somewhat delayed.

MEXICAN OIL FOR GERMANY.

BRITISH FIRM'S ACTION.

TRANSIT AID REFUSED.

I learn that a Thames wharfage company recently refused to accept 25,000 tons of "expropriated" Mexican oil in transit from Mexico to German ports, states a "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. It is understood that a further 75,000 tons of oil was to be landed in Britain in transit for Germany.

The oil, I understand, was part of that recently purchased by Mr. William R. Davis, a New York financier, who is at present in England. It was to be exported to Germany on a barter basis in return for machinery.

When the British wharfage company was asked to take delivery of the 25,000 tons of oil in transit, a Government Department was asked to give its opinion.

The reply was that the Government had already made clear its attitude by protesting to Mexico against the expropriation of British oil fields. The wharfage firm, therefore, decided to refuse the offer that it should take the oil.

TEN TANKERS CHARTERED.

It is understood that Mr. D recently chartered ten tankers to the oil from Mexico to Europe. them are registered in Scandinavian Greek ports.

The bulk of the oil, reputed about £2,000,000 worth, is intended Germany. Some is also being to Belgium and to Italy, via Trieste.

When Mr. Davis made his deal the Mexican Government last mon was reported that 10,000,000 barr oil would be exported to Germany months.

2,000 ORANGEMEN FOR GLASGOW.

AFTER MIDNIGHT SAILING.

ROUGH WEATHER EXPERIENCED.

Travelling by the Larne-Stranraer route in the early hours of this morning, 2,000 members of the Orange Institution in Belfast left to attend an Orange demonstration at Greenock.

Four special trains arrived at Larne Harbour after midnight with the excursionists, and the crossing to Stranraer was made in the Princess Maud and Princess Margaret in stormy weather.

The party return to-morrow morning.

ULSTER VISITORS FOR TWELFTH.

FROM STATES AND CANADA.

ONE P.G.M. OF ILLINOIS WOMEN.

Visitors to Ulster in the present month are most anxious to see the Orange demonstrations on the Twelfth anniversary.

Among those who have arrived already are Sister Mrs. W. M. Moore, Chicago, a past grand mistress of the Women's Order in Illinois.

Mrs. R. W. Hannah and Miss Muriel Hannah come from Toronto (Canada). Personal friend is Mrs. Gibson, wife of Mr. Adam Gibson, brother of the late Mr. Robert Gibson, grand secretary of Belfast. Mrs. Hannah, along with her daughter, is sure to be warmly welcomed by many of the older generation of Orange sisters and brethren.

STORMY WEATHER ABATES.

CHANNEL BOATS LITTLE DELAYED.

The storm which has been experienced round Ulster's shores has abated to some extent and now offers no difficulty to heavy shipping. Lighter craft, however, are confined to port as the weather is still uncertain.

The sea is squally rather than rough, and on the Antrim side especially an offshore wind, with sudden rises in speed, if it persists, will certainly result in the postponement of yachting, etc.

The cross-Channel shipping has not been retarded to any extent however.

CARRICK ANGLER RESCUED.

A Carrickfergus angler, Mr. Thomas Moore, Davey's Street, had an alarming experience on Friday afternoon when hand-line fishing in Belfast Lough.

The weather was suitable when he left the harbour at 3.30 in a small flat bottom boat, and he had not been long at the fishing ground when a strong breeze arose from the north, accompanied by squally showers. Mr. Moore decided to make for the shore and commenced rowing only to find he could make little progress against the elements. As a result he had to drop anchor and rest.

About 8 p.m., Mr. John M'Atamney, Irish Quarter South, Carrickfergus, was notified and with three other volunteers, Messrs. Mick Riordon, David Honen, and Dick Lindsay, they put off to the rescue Mr. M'Atamney's pleasure boat.

Mr. Moore's craft was soon reached and subsequently towed safely back to harbour.

IRISH GUARDS FOR PALESTINE

WITH ESSEX REGIMENT

AND ARMOURED CAR UNIT

GOODS TRAIN WRECKED

THE COLONIAL OFFICE ISSUED THE FOLLOWING ANNOUNCEMENT TO-DAY:—

His Majesty's Government have authorised the despatch as soon as can be arranged of the 11th Hussars from Egypt to Palestine, in addition to two infantry battalions already ordered to move.

These two units are the 1st Batt. Essex Regiment and the 1st Batt. Irish Guards.

Sabotage on the main Palestine-Egypt railway line, near Tulkarm (25 miles north of Jaffa), last night, resulted in the serious derailment of a goods train. Traffic was temporarily suspended.

BRITISH OFFICIAL FIRED ON.

THE ASSISTANT DISTRICT COMMISSIONER FOR GALILEE WAS HEAVILY FIRED UPON LATE ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON BY BRIGANDS NEAR SAFAD, BUT WAS NOT HURT.

THE BRIGANDS WERE LATER DISPERSED.

The strike which started at Amman (Transjordan) on Friday as a protest against the bomb outrages at Haifa on Wednesday continues, but all is quiet.

ANOTHER BRIGADE LEAVING.

The Central News is informed by the War Office to-day that another infantry brigade will proceed to Palestine during the next trooping season to bring up the strength to three infantry brigades.

2nd BATT. KING'S OWN ROYAL REGIMENT;
2nd BATT. LEICESTERSHIRE REGIMENT; and 1st BATT. WORCESTERSHIRE REGIMENT.

THE TROOPS ALREADY THERE.

The troops at present stationed in different parts of Palestine include the 14th Brigade, consisting of the 1st Batt. Royal Scots, 1st Border Regiment, and the 2nd Black Watch, and the 16th Brigade with the 2nd Royal West Kents, 1st Manchester Regiment, and the 2nd Royal Ulster Rifles.

HAIFA'S ELECTRIC ATMOSPHERE.

TROOPS AND SAILORS

PATROL OUTLYING VILLAGES.

HAIFA, Saturday.—The atmosphere in Haifa is electric. As Reuter's correspondent entered the town last night an armour-plated lorry left filled with soldiers and bluejackets to patrol the outlying villages. The police were searching all vehicles.

In Jerusalem the curfew is being strictly enforced from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Troops are picketing the main streets and searching passers-by. On the road from Jerusalem to Haifa a mile of telephone wires have been pulled down.

British police were twice attacked by brigands yesterday and two officers were ambushed while motoring from Nablus to Jerusalem and a small police post was attacked near Haifa. None of the police was hurt. A strong force of troops and police is searching for the attackers.

SHOOTING NEAR SAFAD.

HAIFA, Saturday.—Brigands opened heavy fire on the Assistant District Commissioner for Gatlilee late yesterday afternoon while he was investigating an attack on a Jewish motor-bus near Safad.

The Commissioner and his escort at once took up defensive positions and returned the fire until the atrrival of reinforcements. The attackers then fled. There were no casualties.—P.A. Foreign Special.

PALESTINE "WAR-LORD" TACTICS.

JERUSALEM, Friday.—Emulating the tactics of the former "war lords" in China, a rebel leader in Palestine has sent a proclamation to the town of Tulkarm, now garrisoned by British troops, announcing that he expects the inhabitants to pay him £1,500 tribute.

SEES ITALY'S HAND IN PALESTINE.

"LORD LONDONDERRY'S REPORT."

PARIS, Saturday.—The French Press this morning is disposed to see Italian and possibly German influence behind the new flare-up in Palestine, and somewhat pessimistic deductions are drawn from the international situation generally.

Madame Tabouis in the "Oeuvre" goes so far as to say that the Palestine riots have been interpreted by Mr. Chamberlain as Italy's reply to the British attitude towards France, and that by sending ships and other forces to the Near East, Mr. Chamberlain intends to show that London is not going to be taken by surprise by any extension of the trouble.

There is a suggestion in some quarters, she says, that in the last few days Mr. Chamberlain has turned towards Germany as a hint to Italy that Britain does not attach too much importance to the pact with Italy, but the real situation, she asserts, seems to be that Lord Londonderry has made a report which discourages this tendency. This report, she thinks, showed that Germany's colonial demands have increased 100 per cent. since Lord Londonderry's trip to Berlin.

She concludes by saying that Sir Robert Hodgson will not return to Burgos.—Central News.

The brigand chieftain, the notorious Abd-el-Razzak, has signed himself "Commander-in-Chief of the rebellion."

In his "proclamation" he declares that townsmen failing to contribute towards the "collective fine" he has imposed will be sentenced to death.

PERMIT FOR ULSTER SHOWS.

OFFICIAL DUBLIN ORDER

TO BREEDERS OF POULTRY.

Poultry breeders in the Border counties of Donegal, Monaghan, Cavan, and Louth or breeders in other parts of Eire who send poultry or eggs to Northern agricultural shows, will need to have a permit from the Eire Department of Agriculture or they may not be able to have their fowl and eggs returned.

An official statement issued in Dublin says:—The Minister of Agriculture desires to inform poultry keepers that poultry temporarily exported by them for the purpose of shows, egg-laying tests, etc., are subject to the provisions of the Poultry and Poultry Eggs (Importation) Order, 1938, and re-entry to Eire cannot be allowed save under the authority of a permit issued by the Minister. A permit of the kind will only be issued subject to the compliance with certain conditions, one of which requires that application be made prior to exhibition of the poultry.

Accordingly, persons who propose to exhibit birds at shows in Northern Ireland or Great Britain should make all arrangements with the Department beforehand. Otherwise return of the birds to this country will not be permitted.

SEVEN DEAD: 17 INJURED.

CONSTANTINOPLE (Algeria), Saturday.—Seven people were burned to death and 17 injured, 12 of them seriously, when an omnibus overturned and caught fire near here last night.

The bus left the road in a sharp corner and fell into a gorge.

CHOSEN BY GUARDIANS

AT MEETING THIS MORNING.

Dr. Wilhelmina M. Craig, Malone Road;
Dr. W. B. James, Great Victoria Street;
Dr. W. G. Gibson, New Lodge Road;
Dr. R. A. Moorhead, Magdala Street, Belfast.

There were eleven candidates for the positions.

"RETREAT LEADING TO WAR."

SAYS RAILWAY SECRETARY.

MINISTRY URGED TO MAKE STAND.

The policy of retreat is leading us towards war and not away from it, said Mr. J. Marchbank, the general secretary, at the conference of the National Union of Railwaymen at Southport to-day.

The bluff of Hitler and Mussolini must be called. The N.U.R. would back the Government if it would take a stand against the aggression of the Fascist Powers.

If the Government were not prepared to do this job they should go to the country and give the electors an opportunity of declaring in favour of the Labour Party's peace policy as against the war policy of the present Government.

Mr. B. B. Murray, Carlisle, described the Government as the worst in British history.

"If the Labour Party had left the House of Commons en bloc," he said, "and gone out into the constituencies and stirred the people up such a public opinion would have been created as would have compelled the Government to go to the country."

CRICKET ROUND BLAZING FIRE.

OUTLOOK AS BLEAK AS EVER.

Against the howling wind and driving rain the queues outside Old Trafford, Manchester to-day quickly melted away. A brief cessation of the downpour, which began in the early hours of this morning, influenced a few hundred people to go out to the ground from Manchester. On the journey posters advertising a show entitled "It can't last for ever" may have induced a momentary feeling of optimism, but the sight of the Old Trafford enclosure, with water in pools on the surface, sent all hopes crashing.

Even as early as half past ten it was futile to expect the Test Match to start to-day. Drenching rain soon flooded the whole playing area, and drifted under the covers, which had been on the wicket for nearly 48 hours.

Picking their way carefully around the miniature lakes which were dotted about the ground, several members of the Lancs. Committee examined a previously used wicket. They were apparently concerned about the worn patches, in which seed had been sown and not turves inserted, as is a more common custom by groundsmen. The rain had reduced these patches to mud.

However many times the pitch was inspected it seemed impossible that it could recover enough to permit any cricket before Monday. The wind did not abate. Inside the pavilion Lancs. members were talking cricket over a roaring fire.

On the ground men were at work spiking the turf to allow the water to soak through, and the disconsolate holders of tickets bought in advance sat huddled up in the stands.

GREAT BOWLING BY CLAY.

At Northampton, Lancashire found no difficulty in beating the home side by seven wickets, and at Cardiff, Glamorgan gained a great victory over Kent by 68 runs. Magnificent bowling by J. C. Clay made this possible. Clay not only took his 1,000th wicket for Glamorgan, but ended the day with an analysis of eleven wickets for 10 runs apiece.

LE POMIER SOLD.

UMGALL DIXON REPRESENTATIVE.

The King's Licence may be one of the starters in the £1,000 Ulster Derby at the Maze on Saturday, July 16.

A definite decision whether to run him or not will be made during the course of the next few days.

If the colt runs he will be the first to carry his Majesty's colours in a race in this country.

Lord Derby, at whose suggestion the Ulster Derby was instituted in 1936, will be represented by Sabot, who will be ridden by R. Perryman, and Sir Thomas Dixon, by Umgall, who will be the mount of either W. Nevett or J. Taylor.
